DINNER GIVEN BY FOUNDER OF POST-DISPATCH

Governors and Noted Guests Honor Joseph Pulitzer on Sixtieth Birthday.

RETIRES FROM CONTROL

Ralph Pulitzer, Elder Son, Succeeds Him as Head of Post-Dispatch.

At a dinner given on his sixtieth birthday by Joseph Pulitzer, founder of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World, to members of the Post-Dispatch staff and invited guests at the Southern Hotel Wednesday night, Mr. Pulitzer announced his retirement from the presidency of the Post-Dispatch in favor of the elder of his sons, Mr. Ralph Pulitzer.

The announcement was contained in the following cablegram from Mr. Pulitzer, now in Europe, which was read by Mr. Florence D. White.

"CAP MARTIN, France, April 10.
"White, Post-Dispatch, St. Louis.

"In retiring from the presidency in favor of my son, Ralph, I want to express to you and the editors, managers and entire staff my sincere appreciation for the integrity and ability with which the Post-Dispatch has been so successfully conducted. My grateful thanks are also due to the people of St. Louis for their generous approval of the principles and character of the paper. I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

"JOSEPH PULITZER."

Employes' Pension System.

Another announcement made by Mr. White, speaking for Mr. Pulitzer, was that of the establishment of a pension system for employes of the Post-Dispatch based upon the disability pension scale for families of officers in the United States Army. This announcement was as follows:

"Beginning today, April 10, 1907, for disability after 20 years' continuous service, or on voluntary retirement at 60 years after the same length of service, every employe of the Post-Dispatch receiving a salary of less than $2500 per annum and every foreman and assistant foreman of a department will receive an annual pension for ...e double that fixed in the disability pension scale for families of officers of the United States Army, and the lowest annual payment to any retired employe shall be not less than double the Federal disability pension of the rank of Captain at 20 years' service, viz., $480 a year."

At the guests' table Gov. Folk of Missouri and Gov. Deneen of Illinois sat on the right and the left respectively of the toastmaster, Frank R. O'Neil of the Post-Dispatch. Mayor Wells, former Gov. Francis and former Lieutenant-Governor Johnson sat on Gov. Folk's right.

Mr. O'Neil, after a brief address, first called upon former Gov. Francis, who had to leave early to catch a train, to tell of his acquaintance with Mr. Pulitzer.

Gov. Francis' Anecdote.

Gov. Francis paid a tribute to the lifework, character and forcefulness of Mr. Pulitzer, beginning his speech with a personal reminiscence. He was a very young man, he said, when he first knew Mr. Pulitzer in St. Louis, at the time when the latter, a member of the Missouri Legislature, took an active part in the Constitutional Convention that gave Missouri the Constitution of 1875. Two or three years ago he visited Mr. Pulitzer at his Bar Harbor home, and his host, after some conversation, said to him:

"Francis, come out here in the light where I can see you better."

Mr. Pulitzer, after takign a close look, ran his hands over Gov. Francis' face and figure.

"Francis," he said then, "I remember you as almost a boy in St. Louis, and I cannot recall that you gave any promise of distinction or achieving anything especially notable, but I hear that you are now quite a celebrity. Yet I can't discover anything in your face or general appearance even now giving indication of uncommon ability. I know, however, that the ability must be there—because a man cannot impress himself upon others as you have done without that forcefulness which makes character."

"And this," said the speaker, amid the laughter provoked by his anecdote, "was what Mr. Pulitzer himself possessed to an uncommon degree. It was the man that counted; the strong character, the marked personality. He has made his two newspapers, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the New York World, two of the most powerful and influential newspapers in this country—and I may say now that neither a man nor a newspaper can become and remain powerful and influential unless they stand for the right, for good, for the cause of the people."

Gov. Franceis proposed a toast to Mr. Pulitzer, which was drunk by all standing.

Johnson Tells of Early Years.

Former Lieut.-Gov. Charles P. Johnson, in a speech covering nearly 40 years' friendship with Mr. Pulitzer, closely analyzed the latter's character. Mr. Pulitzer, he said, was a man of tremendous energy and great ambition. He was a reporter for the Westliche Post when the speaker was Circuit Attorney and was reporting the court news.

Even at that early day Mr. Pulitzer's hostility to wrongdoers in public office was marked and one of his first fights as a newspaper man was against certain evils which he discovered in the old County Court. He was a genuine fighter, too, Gov. Johnson said, a man who was human in that he could lose his temper and fight when necessary.

At one time Mr. Pulitzer was ambitious to attain fame as a lawyer and he studied law, rented an office adjoining that of Gov. Johnson, and was admitted to the St. Louis bar. Soon afterward, however, he returned to what the speaker considered his natural field—that of newspaper work—and, when the occasion offered, bought the old St. Louis Dispatch, then practically dead, and assumed its active management.

At that time Mr. Pulitzer did not expect to live longer than 10 years, but

DYNAMITE IN MAIL MAIMS POSTAL CLERK

Stamping of Letter Causes Contents to Explode With Serious Results.

YOUNGSTER SENDS A GIFT

Caps for Juvenile Friend Inclosed Without Any Idea of Danger.

A letter containing half a dozen dynamite caps, mailed by Morris B. Winter, a 17-year-old boy, of Ninth and Tyler streets, exploded Thursday while it was being stamped in the Postoffice by John G. Boyer, a clerk, of 3875 Botanical avenue. The explosion lacerated and badly burned the thumb and middle finger of Boyer's right hand, blew him up against the screen of his cage and caused consternation among the other clerks.

Boyer's injuries were treated by Dr. James Steward of 4847 Page boulevard, after which he returned to his work. The letter containing the dynamite caps was mailed by Winter early Thursday morning in a box at Broadway and Tyler streets. It was addressed to Miss Emma Sickle of Independence, Mo.

The letter was too large to go through the stamping machine, and it was given, with others, to Bayer to be stamped by hand. Bayer was holding the package of letters with his left hand and stamping them with the die which he held in the right. He struck the letter a hard blow near the center. A loud explosion followed. The die was blown out of the clerks' hand and he was thrown from his balance. At first he thought he was badly hurt, but after his injuries were cleaned and dressed by the physician it was found that he was not seriously injured.

Return Card Disclosed Sender.

The identity of the writer was learned, through a return inscription which Winter had scrawled on the corner of the envelope. He gave the return address as 1741 North Eleventh street, the home of his cousin, Joseph Santol, but he does not live there. He is an orphan, rooms at Ninth and Tyler streets and is employed in the factory of the Conrades Chair Co., Second and Tyler streets.

"I had some dynamite caps in my room and after I had written the letter to Miss Sickles, for whom I formerly worked at Independence, I wrapped them up and enclosed them in the envelope," said Winter to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "There are several boys in the family and I thought they would enjoy shooting the caps.

"When I put the caps in the letter I did not think about it having to be stamped, but I see now that it was a dangerous thing to do. I wrapped the caps in three sheets of paper and put them in the center of the envelope, and it made a good-sized package. As I was going to work I dropped it into a letter box at Broadway and Tyler streets.

"I am sorry that it exploded and hurt the clerk. I did not mean to do anything wrong. I thought my boy friends at Independence would be glad to get the caps. They were some I had left over and I just happened to see them as I was preparing to mail the letter and stuck them in."

Winter is a tall, raw-boned boy, who is not accustomed to city ways. He visits his cousins at the North Eleventh street house and that, he says, explains why he gave their number as the return address.

A Postoffice inspector was sent here to see Winter. Dynamite caps are unmailable, but under the Government laws, there is no penalty attached for sending them by post. The Postoffice Department will not ask for the boy's arrest.

WIDOWS, MAIDS, DIVORCEE-TO-BE WANT RANCHMAN

New Mexico Seeker of Connubial Bliss Has Fifteen St. Louis Chances.

WOULD LEAVE ST. LOUIS

In Letters Sent to Kirkwood Editor They Coyly Express Willingness.

If Charles Baker, wealthy ranchman of McKinley County, New Mexico, doesn't find a wife, it will not be because St. Louis women have been too coy to tell him of their good points, or because Steve J. Harris, editor of the Kirkwood Courier, is not a good matrimonial agent.

Through the Post-Dispatch last Sunday Mr. Harris told the world of Mr. Baker's yearning for a wife. He had received a letter from Baker, asking him to let the women of Missouri and surrounding States know that there was a good home for one of them in New Mexico.

Since then Mr. Harris' mail has been so heavy that he has had to employ an assistant to look after it.

Nearly all of the women who write live in St. Louis.

Mrs. Alice Zachary of 3112 Hickory street writes that she is jolly, companionable, loving, lonesome and a widow. Here is her letter:

Hasn't a Gray Hair.

ST. LOUIS, April 8, 1907.

Mr. Steve J. Harris:

Dear Sir—I hereby write a few lines in reply to Mr. Charles Baker of McKinley County, New Mexico, applicant:

I am a widow and an orphan, with no children and no relations. I am entirely alone in the world, and have no home. I can make myself contented with anyone or enjoy myself anywhere. I am of an agreeable, jolly nature and make the best of everything. I am of a loving disposition and know how to manage. I love the Western States far beter than Missouri.

You would have received my application sooner, but I was not in the city. I have been out in the county at work and just got back tonight. As soon as I can get my trunk I will forward you a picture of myself.

I am 5 feet tall and weigh 148 pounds. I have dark brown hair and blue eyes and not overly dark complexion. I am of German and Scotch descent, and was born and reared in Illinois. I am tired of a single life. I have lived a widow 15 years, and it is getting lonesome. That is better than a great many would do, I think. I am now only 42 years old and haven't a gray hair yet. Yours respectfully,

MRS. ALICE ZACHARY,
3112 Hickory street.

No Angel, But a Good Girl.

ST. LOUIS, April 7, 1907.

Mr. S. J. Harris.

Dear Sir—I read in the Post-Dispatch of the appeal the Western gentleman made to you. I will answer it at once and hope I will hear from him. I am tall, weigh 152 pounds, am 24 years old, and speak German, although I am an American. I am fond of home life and am a good housekeeper. I can bake and sew and do almost everything about the house. I am fond of children. I am an orphan and have lived in St. Louis a number of years. I have been in the South, and have traveled a good deal. I will inclose a small photo and will send a larger one as soon as I have one taken. I am a stenographer and milliner, but work at the first. Am a poor girl and would marry as soon as possible. I am no angel, but have always been a good girl. I enjoy dancing and other amusements, but of course can give them up if such a thing is needed. Hoping to hear from Mr. Baker, I remain, respectfully,

SYBILLA BREITUNG,
8316 Pennsylvania avenue.

Seeks Home, Not Money.

All that Mrs. Mary Houssell of Hannibal, Mo., wants is a happy home and a good husband. She says:

HANNIBAL, Mo., April 9, 1907.

MR. CHARLES BAKER, care of Steve J. Harris.

Dear Sir: I have been reading a letter that you have written to Mr. Steve J. Harris at Kirkwood, Mo. In regard to that I will answer, since you say you are in search of a good wife.

Well, Mr. Baker, I am a widow and have no children. I am 38 years old, enjoy good health and have a good, kind disposition. I am a good housekeeper, and am living with a private family, doing the cooking only. I bear a good name, am well respected and can give the best of references.

I would marry no man for his money, but I want a good and happy home and a good husband. I do not care for the past life, but for the future, and for a man to live contentedly and happily with me. I send my photograph. I would like for you to return the photo. Will close, hoping to hear from you. Yours truly,

MRS. MARY HOUSSELL.
Hannibal, Mo.

Has Lots of Dark Hair.

Mrs. Anna J. Gill of 1022A Grattan street has a husband at present, but she says she expects to obtain a divorce in June. She writes:

ST. LOUIS, April 7, 19...

Mr. Baker, care of Mr. Harris.

Dear Sir—I have been reading your letter and I take pleasure in answering. I think we might agee. Life alone is not the best. I am younger than you, but it is always best for the man to be older. I will be 30 years old my next birthday. I wish you could make a trip to St. Louis. I would like very much to have a long talk with you; we would know each other better then, much better than we could ever know by writing. I am of German descent. I work and always have worked. I was married once; my maiden name was Anna J. Shultz and my married name is Gill. I am now getting a divorce and think I will have it in June. * * *

I love a man and I love a home, but I love a good man and one that will do his part as well as I do mine. I think that is right and you will agree with me.

If you think enough of me to write or come to St. Louis I will give you or send you one of my pictures. My hair is dark brown and there is lots of it. My eyes are large and brown and I weigh 130 pounds. I will close, hoping to hear from you very soon.

Yours sincerely,
1022A Grattan street. ANNA J. GILL.

Knows She'll Make Him Happy.

Mrs. Mary E. Hopkins of 1820 South Jefferson avenue knows that she will make a good wife because she has reared a family of three children. Her letter reads:

ST. LOUIS, April 7, 1907.

Mr. Charles Baker, care of Mr. Harris.

Dear Sir—I was looking over the Sunday Post-Dispatch when I saw your letter, and thought I would answer. I am a widow, 43 years old. I have raised a family of two girls and one boy. All are now grown. My oldest daughter is married and her sister is living with her. My boy is the youngest, 17, and takes care of himself.

I am small, 5 feet tall, weigh 125 pounds, have blue eyes and dark brown hair, which is now turning to gray. I am good looking, a housekeeper and can cook. I have god health and a good figure. I have no picture, but am having some taken and will send you one soon. I would be pleased to have one of yours. I have been in St. Louis about twenty years.

I think I have said about all I can this time, except that I am a lover of home and a kind husband. I know I can make a man happy. I hope this will interest you enough to call for an answer. I will close, with best regards.

NEW DECISION ON INCUBATOR INFANT

Illinois Appellate Court Renders Decision Contrary to Kansas Tribunal.

BABY SOUGHT IN VAIN

One Court Decree Has Been Ineffective in Changing Its Custody.

Custody of the famous World's Fair "incubator baby" was awarded Thursday by the Appellate Court of Illinois to Mrs. Stella Barclay of Rochester, N. Y., according to a dispatch from Ottawa, Ill.

This decision is directly opposed to the action of the Supreme Court of Kansas, last Saturday, yielding the infant to its mother, Mrs. Charlotte Bleakley of Lawrence, Kan.

The legal tangle which ensues from these antagonistic decisions of the courts will involve the question which tribunal has jurisdiction. The issue may have to be decided by the United States courts.

The disputed child was seen by Mr. and Mrs. James G. Barclay, then living at Moline, Ill., when they were visitors to the Pike at the World's Fair. They were a childless couple, and the story of the foundling related by the lecturer of the Baby Incubator exhibit made such a powerful impression upon them that the parentage of the child was traced by Mrs. Barclay, who persuaded the mother to sign a deed of adoption.

Later Mrs. Bleakley, the mother, claimed to have discovered that the woman in charge of the maternity hospital, where the child was born, had deceived her with a story that the infant had died. Instead, Mrs. Bleakley said that she learned the woman had taken her own and another infant to the Incubator exhibit on the Pike. Fees were being paid for procuring children for the exhibition.

One of the infant exhibits died while in an incubator. The other lived, and Mrs. Bleakley established her parentage to the satisfaction of the Circuit Court at Rock Island, Ill., just after the close of the Exposition.

She took the child, who had been christened R. Thelma Barclay, to her home at Lawrence, where the baby was rechristened Marion Roberta Bleakley. The Barclays, having become deeply attached to their adopted daughter, began suit in the District Court of Douglas County, Kan., to recover the child. They were successful in the trial, but never obtained possession of the infant.

The Supreme Court of Kansas, meanwhile, reversed the court of Douglas County, Kan., and last Saturday rendered a decree, declaring Mrs. Bleakley to be the natural mother. Now the Appellate Court of Illinois reverses the lower Illinois tribunal, at Moline, to which the mother had appealed after the Kansas authorities failed to get the child for her.

MRS. BRINKMAN HELD.

Coroner's Jury Places Responsibility on Her for Mrs. Giebel's Death.

The Coroner's jury which on Thursday investigated the death of Mrs. Susie Giebel, aged 25, of 3307 St. Vincent avenue, returned a verdict of homicide and fixed the responsibility on Mrs. Mary Brinkman of 4748 South Broadway. Mrs. Brinkman in a statement to the jury denied that she had performed any operation on Mrs. Giebel or that she had given her any treatment. She gave bond.

The case was reported to the Coroner by the officials of the Christian Hospital, 2825 Lawton avenue, where Mrs. Giebel died April 9. The operation is alleged to have been performed about the middle of February. Mrs. Giebel's husband and several women were witnesses, but all disclaimed having advised the treatment which caused her death.

Warrant for School Teacher.

A warrant charging Miss Leona Watts, a school teacher at Lebanon, Ill., with assaulting Roy Boyce, an 8-year-old pupil, was issued at Belleville Thursday. The boy's father, George Boyce, alleges that Miss Watts used undue force in chastising his son for sticking out his tongue at her.

BRIDE SEEKS HER MISSING HUSBAND

Mrs. Nora Grinter Has Not Seen Him Since March 30, Last.

Mrs. Nora Grinter, a bride of five months, living at 1611A Arlington avenue, is seeking her husband, William F. Grinter, whom she has not seen since March 30 last.

Mrs. Grinter is 21 years old and attractive. Her husband is 22. She can assign no reason for his mysterious absence. Apparently, she says, her husband was as devoted to her when he left as on the day of their marriage.

Grinter was employed in a clerical position by the Emerson Electric Co., Twenty-first street and Washington avenue. Saturday morning, March 30, he left home as usual to go to his work. He kissed his wife good-bye. Soon after he left Mrs. Grinter noticed that all of his clothes were missing and that the pictures of his family had been taken from the walls. Her diamond engagement ring also was missing.

She went directly to her husband's place of employment. Grinter told her not to be alarmed, that he had simply planned to spend a few days with a friend in another part of the city. He told her he would be at home at 4:30 that afternoon.

Grinter failed to appear. He is still missing, nor has his wife heard from him. She was left without money.

At the office of the electric company Mrs. Grinter was told that her husband drew $40, his salary for two weeks, on the day she called there to see him.

Little Rock Man Gives Up in Indianapolis—St. Louis Girl His Friend.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 11.—Immaculately dressed and spending his last cent for his fare, Rudolph Crowell of Little Rock, Ark., went to Police Headquarters in a cab early to day. "You needn't wait," he said, handing the cabman his last half dollar. "I expect to be in here some time." With a careless air he turned and as the cab clattered away, threw away his cigar and entered the police station. Walking into the office of Capt. Martin Hyland, he extended a neatly gloved hand.

"How are you, Captain?" said he, "I, I'm a thief; want to give myself up. I've gone broke; now my good time's over and I'm willing to pay the penalty."

Capt. Hyland thought at first the man was jesting, but a conversation of five minutes convinced him that Crowell was very much in earnest. Half an hour later he was in a cell and will be held until authorities in Little Rock can be heard from. Crowell said that until March 28 he was employed by the Wells-Fargo Express Co. at Little Rock. He had been working there just two weeks when he spied two packages of money in the office. One contained $1300 and the other $1000. Last night he said he had spent every cent of it and he had no money in his possession when searched. Several telegrams were found in his possession, signed "Lucile," and were of an affectionate nature. He said he had been corresponding with a young woman at 2606 Lucas avenue, St. Louis.

Officers searched the man's grips. In them they found the empty envelopes and $120 in money. Two of the envelopes showed that they had contained $1000 and were consigned from W. H. Burnett, Magazine, Ark., to the State National Bank of Little Rock. Another of the envelopes had contained $285.95 and still another $46.40, consigned by the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Co. to the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago. The last envelope showed that it had contained $78, consigned from the Choctaw, Oklahoma & Gulf Railway Co. to the Merchants' Laclede National Bank of St. Louis. Waybills for the money were also found. Several telegrams found in Crowell's pockets may lead to the solution of a part of the problem. The messages were from Miss Lucile Lester, 2643 Lucas avenue, St. Louis, and showed that she had been on very intimate terms with Crowell. An envelope in Crowell's pocket had been addressed to Miss Leah Colrath, 19 South Seventh street, St. Louis, and had later been addressed again to 2645 Lucas avenue. The police are inclined to think from the tone of the Lester girl's telegrams to Crowell that she received money from him.

NEGRO SENTENCED TO FORTY YEARS

H. Kelley Pleads Guilty to Murder of Philip Frey in Belleville Circuit Court.

Henry Kelley, a negro, the self-confessed accomplice of Charles Allison, who was found guilty of the murder of Philip Frey, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of murder and was sentenced to 40 years in the Penitentiary by Judge R. D. W. Holder of the Belleville Circuit Court.

Allison was sentenced to 25 years in prison by a jury that had found him guilty of cutting Frey's throat with a razor four years ago. The evidence introduced showed that the murder was planned by Allison and Kelley a week before it took place.

Kelley confessed to furnishing the razor with which the killing was done. Allison is 53 years old, Kelly is 32. Whitesides, the negro who told the story of the crime, is 23 years of age. His sentence was 50 years.

THAW LAWYERS SAY THEY HAVE NO HOPE OF ACQUITTAL NOW

Best They Can Look For Now, They Declare, Is a "Hung Jury"—After Eighteen Hours Deliberation the Jurors Send for Several Exhibits and Are Going Over Much of the Evidence.

SLAYER WILL BE KEPT IN CELL UNTIL NEXT FALL UNLESS TWELVE MEN AGREE

Although His Attorneys Are Discouraged, Thaw, Insisting That He Will Be Acquitted, Has Packed His Belongings and Made Ready to Leave the Tombs—Sends a Note to Newspaper Men.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

NEW YORK, April 11.—After deliberating for more than 18 hours without being able to reach an agreement, the jury into whose hands the fate of Harry K. Thaw was given at 5:17 yesterday afternoon reported before Justice Fitzgerald at 11 a. m. today and asked permission to examine a large number of the exhibits introduced during the trial and also asked to have read to them the testimony of several eye-witnesses to the tragedy. It is evident that there is a serious difference of opinion among the jurors and that they are far from a verdict.

Thaw's lawyers have given up all hope of an acquittal. The best they can hope for now, they say, is a hung jury. Thaw, on the other hand, insists he will be freed.

Among the exhibits called for were the letters which Harry K. Thaw wrote to Attorney Longfellow shortly after, as alleged, Evelyn Nesbit told him in Paris the story of her relations with Stanword White, and the will and codicil, which Thaw executed the night of his marriage in Pittsburg on April 4, 1905. The letters and will were introduced by the defense to show the mental storm which, it is claimed, was brought upon the defendant by the story the girl related.

The jury also asked for the diagram of Madison Square Roof Garden as it was the night Thaw killed White. This diagram was held up before them as the court stenographer read from the official record the testimony given by James Clinch Smith, the brother-in-law of Stanford White, to whom Thaw talked for more than half an hour the night of the tragedy, and the evidence of several of the witnesses for both sides.

The action of the jury in asking for the exhibits and the testimony led to much speculation as to what the trend of their long discussion had been.

One of the widely discussed theories was that the jurors either wanted to refresh their memories as to testimony tending to show either deliberation or premeditation on the part of Thaw, or else they wanted to have the story of Thaw's actions the night of the tragedy rehearsed once more in order that they might judge as to his rationality.

The suggestion of the latter purpose seemed to be given weight by the fact that they desired to examine the letters, the will and the codicil brought forward by the defense in support of its claim of insanity.

Far From an Agreement.

It was generally conceded that serious differences of opinion had developed among the jurors as to the evidence and that a verdict of any sort was still remote. The examination of the Thaw letters and the other documents called for will require much time.

Thaw faced his jurors today with every indication of confidence. He of all the members of his counsel and his family, is still hopeful of a favorable outcome. The best that his counsel expect is a disagreement of the jury. They have feared from the time the jurors retired that there might be a compromise among them on some lesser degree of guilt than murder in the first degree. The action of the jury today in calling for the testimony did not inspire the attorneys to any new hope.

Following the testimony of Mr. Smith, that of Officer John Barry, doorman of the Nineteenth Precinct Station, where Thaw was taken the night of the killing, was read.

Packed His Clothing.

Newspaper men called at the Tombs early today and sent a message to Harry Thaw's cell asking how he felt. He said he was still confident and hopeful of a favorable outcome.

It was said that Thaw had a good night's rest after returning to his cell shortly before midnight.

The guards at the Tombs said Thaw was packing up his effects, ready to leave the prison at a moment's notice, should it be acquittal. When the jury returned to the Criminal Court Building after breakfast they went at once to the juryroom and resumed their deliberations.

Members of the Thaw family began to arrive at the Criminal Court Building shortly after 10 o'clock. In one automobile were Mrs. William Thaw, the Countess of Yarmouth, Mrs. George L. Carnegie and Edward Thaw. They went at once to the witness room, adjoining Justice Fitzgerald's chambers. The Judge came in a few minutes later.

When Justice Fitzgerald went to his chambers the court officials told him no word had come from the jurors.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw made her appearance at the Courthouse within 15 minutes after the other members of the family had arrived. Through the heavy black veil she wore it could be plainly seen she was unusually pale. She walked as though much fatigued.

At 10:35 the newspaper men were admitted to the court room through the Judge's private entrance, but the doors were not opened to the public. District Attorney Jerome and the lawyers for the defense were summoned to the room. A few minutes later the jury asked for some of the exhibits, and the District Attorney's messenger delivered to the officer in charge of the jury all the exhibits in the District Attorney's possession, including the large photographs of Evelyn Nesbit, which she identified as having been taken the day she said White outraged her.

At 10:59 a. m. the Judge took the bench, and the jury was called into the court room.

A minute later an officer was sent to the Tombs to bring Thaw to the court room.

The jury asked the Judge to give them six of the exhibits in the case, including the plan of the Roof Garden.

Thaw's Note to Reporters.

After reading the newspapers and just before coming over the court, Harry K. Thaw sent a note to the newspaper man saying there were so many misstatements in the papers that he would like to give out a statement which would be official. It was as follows:

"I am told that it is impossible to tell what any jury will do, so I am attending to my ordinary affairs, but preparing for the best, as it is simpler to unpack my things if necessary than it would be to return here for them if the verdict is favorable.

"I had a very good cold bath. The bathroom always is filled with fresh air in the early morning with the same temperature as outdoors. Next I had weak coffee and rolls as usual. These details must have interest plus, as they are often mistold.

"HARRY K. THAW."

The jury asked Justice Fitzgerald to be allowed to examine the following exhibits:

Plan of Madison Square Roof Garden.
The letters from Thaw to Attorney Longfellow.
The Thaw will and codicil.
The Comstock letter.
Delmas' hypothetical question.
Jerome's hypothetical question.

The jury also asked to have the testimony of several witnesses read.

All the members of the Thaw family were in court. Thaw came in carrying an armful of papers he had been industriously reading.

The action of the jury in asking for the testimony of the eye-witnesses of the tragedy led to many conjectures. One of these was that the jury wanted to fix in its mind either the question of deliberation and premeditation on Thaw's part or the rationality or irrationality of his acts.

The plan of the garden was held up for the inspection of the jurors as the testimony was read to them.

The jury then asked for the testimony of James Clinch Smith, Stanford White's brother-in-law, who had a long conversation with Thaw on the roof garden a few minutes before the shooting. Mr. Smith's evidence was read.

Argued All Night.

After being locked in their consultation room at 11 o'clock last night, with nothing but hard chairs and a table to rest upon, the jurors argued unceasingly among themselves. The few ballots taken indicated, it is said, that there was a wide divergence of views.

Their confinement continued until 7 o'clock this morning, when, two by two, the 12 men were marched to the Broadway Central Hotel for breakfast. They looked pale and worn as they filed out of the Criminal Courts Building, but upon their return, two hours later, their drooping spirits had somewhat revived, and they exchanged smiles and words of sympathy with a number of newspaper men who have been in attendance at the trial since Jan. 23.

Justice Fitzgerald arrived at the courtroom shortly after 10 o'clock. He had been preceded a few minutes by members of the Thaw family, all of whom seemed dejected and forlorn.

Just before 11 o'clock Justice Fitzgerald received a communication from the jury asking for an interview at which they might present their requests for exhibits, and the reading of testimony.

At 11 o'clock the jury filed into the courtroom. Only the members of the Thaw family, his attorneys, District Attorney Jerome and the newspaper men were allowed to enter.

Strain Tells on Jurors.

The strain under which the jurors had labored since their retirement yesterday afternoon was plainly written upon their faces. Their eyes were red and their cheeks were a chalky white. It was evident that sleep had been a stranger to their consultation room last night.

Jurors Pink and Steele seemed especially to have suffered in the long vigil. During the long time it required the court stenographer to read the testimony they desired, the jurymen lounged back in their chairs, and appeared to keep awake only with the greatest effort.

When Harry K. Thaw was called to the bar he entered the room with a quick stride and bright eyes, carrying half a dozen morning newspapers. His manner and appearance bore out the statements of his counsel earlier in the day, that he apparently was in better shape physically than any other person connected with the long and tedious trial.

Thaw bowed to his mother, his wife, his two sisters, the Countess of Yarmouth and Mrs. George L. Carnegie, and to his brothers, Edward and Josiah. He then turned to his counsel, all of whom were present, and entered into a brisk conversation with them.

RALPH PULITZER PRESIDENT OF POST-DISPATCH

he told Gov. Johnson that he would make the most of the 10 years and develop his newspaper into as great an influence for good as was possible to him. From the very moment he took hold of the Dispatch, soon consolidating it with the Post, it gained new life and since then, under the name of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, had grown to its present proportions.

Then, said Gov. Johnson, the opportunity arose to purchase the New York World under conditions very similar to those attaching to the purchase of the Dispatch, the World being virtually a dead newspaper, and Mr. Pulitzer went on to New York to look into the matter.

Risked All in New York.

Upon returning to St. Louis he consulted Gov. Johnson as to the advisability of entering the New York field. The speaker told him to be very cautious. He had already been successful in St. Louis, but he was not yet financially very strong. He ran the risk of losing all that he had gained in St. Louis, and this risk demanded serious consideration.

But Mr. Pulitzer decided to buy The World, and, having done so, he took with him to New York some of the St. Louis newspaper men who had been associated with him on the Post-Dispatch, and, throwing all his energy and his magnificent fighting ability, which had been so trained and tempered for great service by his St. Louis experiences, into the enterprise, he scored the phenomenal success which is now a matter of newspaper history.

Mr. Pulitzer, the speaker said, never made one step forward that was not made in the face of the bitterest opposition, the fiercest hostility, and it was this training that made him the indomitable character that he was. Absolutely fearless when he felt that he was in the right, he did not hesitate to attack any evil, no matter how strongly intrenched—and he never stopped fighting until he had gained the victory. But there was no rancor in his nature. The minute the other man was whipped, Mr. Pulitzer was willing to stop fighting.

Gov. Johnson concluded his speech with an eloquent tribute to the public value of the type of people's newspapers founded by Mr. Pulitzer, and declared that the better conditions now existing were largely due to the public service of such newspapers.

His Message Cheered Folk.

Mr. O'Neil introduced Gov. Folk as the man who, in public office, by singleness of purpose and devotion to duty, had stirred in St. Louis a spirit of reform which had swept the entire nation and purified almost every municipality.

"I have never met Mr. Pulitzer," said Gov. Folk, "but I shall never forget the message I received from him in a roundabout way when I was beginning my work as Circuit Attorney in prosecuting boodlers. The message was, 'Give them hell, but no quarter.'"

Gov. Folk dwelt upon the wide scope of the newspaper man's activities and responsibilities.

"The man in any other business or profession has only his own affairs to look after," said he. "Gov. Deneen and I have a little brief authority to guard the welfare of the people of our states, but at our State boundaries our responsibilities cease. The newspapers, however, stop at no boundaries.

"They look into other people's affairs everywhere. They attend to everybody's business.

"The power of the press today is in its honesty and its devotion to right and the public good. The newspaper that represents special or individual interests cannot succeed. What power would a journal controlled by Rockefeller have among the people?"

Made All Papers Better.

Gov. Charles S. Deneen of Illinois, who followed Gov. Folk, gave a characteristic exhibition of post-prandial sharpshooting. He was brief and crisp, witty and ripe, and he rang the bell with delightful rapidity from the various angles of humor, appreciation, neighborliness and statesmanship.

Mr. Deneen began with congratulating the Democrats of Missouri upon the possession of Mr. Folk and felicitating the Republicans of Illinois that this Democrat occurred on this side of the river rather than on the east side. He admitted that Missouri infected Illinois with reform. He protested his innocence of any intention to preach, being assured that no one can come down from Chicago and tell St. Louis anything she doesn't know. He further testified to the altogether humble state of mind in which he came, by confessing to having been born in Egypt, within 16 miles of St. Louis.

Having thus amusingly blown his low-sounding brass, the Governor proceeded to the consideration of weightier things, always displaying admirable facility and selection in words.

He has no personal acquaintance with Mr. Pulitzer, but enjoyed being his guest for what he has done. Mr. Deneen said he had been associated with newspaper men through thirteen years of official life. He had learned to lean upon the newspaper as the greatest ally of a public servant doing his duty. He had learned the universal range of a newspaper man's interest, the consequent breadth of his thought and the advantage of his point of view. He regards Mr. Pulitzer as an historical character, exerting upon the age a vastly greater influence toward progress than can be exerted by any single man commanding only the limited range of public office. "Mr. Pulitzer has been 30 years a newspaper force," he said. "Think of it! What Governor or Senator could exercise in 30 years the public influence which has been his? Not one."

Mr. Deneen told a story he had heard of Mr. Pulitzer when he acquired the New York World. "Pulitzer, move on!" became a catch phrase with his rivals. "He did move on," said Mr. Deneen, "on, and still on. And every paper in the United States moved on and has been moving on ever since, as a result of the impetus he gave the American press."

Mayor Wells was called upon to tell of his experience with newspapers and newspaper men. He responded in a brief address, saying that he was glad to pay tribute to the great accomplishments of Mr. Pulitzer. He said that as a boy he had seen and known Mr. Pulitzer and had always remembered that acquaintance, although he presumed Mr. Pulitzer had long since forgotten it.

Pension Plan Praised.

Charles W. Knapp, president and general manager of the Knapp Publishing Co., proprietors of the St. Louis Republic, spoke in high praise of Mr. Pulitzer's newspaper achievements. He said that he himself was one of the oldest St. Louis newspaper men in point of service, having been in active newspaper work for forty years, and that he had known Mr. Pulitzer for nearly that entire period. Mr. Pulitzer, he said, was a man of surpassing energy, ability and strength of mind, and was an extraordinarily shrewd judge of character.

"I concede that he knew how to surround himself with good men as his lieutenants," said Mr. Knapp, "because I see here tonight several men whom he has taken away from the Republic."

Mr. Pulitzer was tirelessly active in work for the public good, the speaker said, and, while he, the speaker, was on duty in Washington years ago, Mr. Pulitzer made frequent visits to the nation's capital and was often in the speaker's Washington office.

Mr. Knapp gave generous praise to Mr. Pulitzer's action in establishing a service-retirement fund for old employes of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and added that the Republic had in several instances cared for its disabled employes, and would continue to do so. He himself was glad, the speaker said, to furnish the anomaly of a newspaper publisher praising his rival, and to be present on an occasion honoring Mr. Pulitzer.

Advocated Enfranchisement.

Frederick N. Judson, the attorney, told of his long acquaintance with Mr. Pulitzer and their association in the days when Mr. Pulitzer was personally in St. Louis leading the fight against public evils.

"There is one phase of Mr. Pulitzer's work," said he, "which should not be overlooked on this occasion. In the days immediately following the Civil War a large part of the population of Missouri was disfranchised as a result of the strife.

"There were many men here like Carl Schurz, Gov. Johnson and Frank P. Blair, who believed that the franchise should be returned to these, that enmity should be forgotten and the warring factions reunited. Mr. Pulitzer was one of the leaders in this movement.

"For the sake of bringing about this reform, many members of the Republican party, which was in power in the State, left it and organized the Liberal Republican party, whose single aim was re-enfranchisement. The party lasted only two years because in that time it accomplished its great purpose. Its members then returned to their old affiliations. Mr. Pulitzer was one of the foremost among those who helped bring this result about.

He also took an active part in drafting the present State Constitution, which was so well done that it still is, in effect, meeting the needs of the State."

The speaker praised the School of Journalism, for whose establishment as a department of Columbia University Mr. Pulitzer has provided. He declared that the instruction provided there would, as its founder intended, raise the standard of newspaper work throughout the United States. It would help, he said, to lift newspapers from the plane of commercialism on which some of them now exist.

Mr. Judson suggested that the greetings of the guests be cabled to Mr. Pulitzer and that a committee be appointed to send a cablegram. The toastmaster called for a vote on the suggestion. It was unanimous and he appointed Mr. Judson, F. W. Lehmann and Charles W. Knapp as the committee.

Greetings Exchanged.

George S. Johns of the Post-Dispatch staff talked of the policies and newspaper ideas of Mr. Pulitzer, learned in more than 20 years' service under him.

Greetings were read to the guests by Mr. White from the guests at a dinner given by Mr. Ralph Pulitzer at Delmonico's in New York to the staff of the New York World. Joseph Pulitzer Jr., H. L. Dunlap and Oliver K. Bovard were appointed by the toastmaster to respond to this message.

Mr. Pulitzer, after reading the message prepared by the committee, spoke to the members of the staff.

Those who had watched Father D. S. Phelan as he conversed with Gov. Johnson and Supt. Soldan at his end of the guests' table anticipated a treat when his turn as a speaker was reached.

"The Devil invented printing," asserted the twinkling eyed editor-priest. "At any rate, tradition in Germany, the home of printing, names Faustus (another name for the Evil One) as the first to practice the art. There was a curse in Germany in the old days, 'May the Devil and Dr. Faustus get you.'

"During the troubled days of His Holiness, Pius IX, a number of editors in Rome banded together to defend the Holy See from the assaults of its enemies. They appealed to Pope Pius for his blessing and asked that he would name for them a patron saint. He deputed a cardinal to search the lives of the saints to see if there had been among them an editor or anyone connected with publishing and its allied crafts. The cardinal searched the lives of saints great and saints small, but no one who had ever had the slightest part in the newspaper business could he find. The Pope, on learning of this lack of newspaper men in the ranks of the canonized, told the editors that they might send one of their number to the Vatican to pick out a saint by chance.

"The representative came to the Vatican and was blindfolded and placed in a long hall, lined with statues of the saints. He was thrice turned around and was then told that the saint whose statue he first touched would become the patron of his profession.

"He groped half way down the hall, then touched sculptured marble, and fell on his knees, clasping a carved figure and crying 'Be thou our patron, Oh, saint, whoever thou art.'

"As he pulled off his blindfold, he saw that he was holding the figure of the Devil, whom the sculptor had placed beneath the uplifted sword of St. Michael.

A Paper for the People.

"We have heard Mr. Johns read a beautiful code of rules for the guidance of newspaper men. Those rules fare daily as did the good resolves of Dr. Samuel Johnson, who nightly formed 60 rules of conduct for the next day, only to shatter them all before nightfall. But he used to say, Boswell tells us, that he believed he was a better man for having made the resolutions. So it may be with you gentlemen of the Post-Dispatch.

"I knew Mr. Pulitzer as long, I believe, as anyone here. I was the confidant of at least one of his early ambitions, which was to become a noted public speaker. He was always breaking into all sorts of games, and I thought that time he was going to break into my game.

"As a newspaper reporter and a newspaper proprietor, Mr. Pulitzer always has believed in the people. The people are not always right, but if a paper goes no farther wrong than the people do, its mistakes can be pardoned.

"The Post-Dispatch and the New York World are the two greatest newspapers in the country today, not so much because they are great in one or another of their departments as because they are the organs of the people.

"I find that the people of my parish read the Post-Dispatch far more than other papers, yet when I ask them why, they can only say that it is because they like it. They like it because it is for the people."

Put Press Ahead of Pulpit.

Rabbi Samuel Sale followed Father Phelan with an expression of admiration for the career of Mr. Pulitzer, of whom, he said, he had known by reputation ever since he had been a newspaper reader and a student of the world's affairs. He declared Mr. Pulitzer to have led in the advancement of the modern newspaper to a point where it has in large part supplanted the pulpit as a means of teaching the truth.

To illustrate the responsibility of the newspaper which is trying to make men better, Rabbi Sale told the story of a rabbi who, to gain entrance to heaven, said that he had tried to make men beter. The reply of the celestial gateman was that the rabbi should wait outside until one whom he had made better came along and that he might enter with such a one. The speaker said the tale has it that the rabbi is standing there yet.

F. W. Lehmann, the attorney, referred to the power of the modern daily newspaper, and said that the possession of such power should make its possessor cautious in its use.

A toast to Ralph Pulitzer, the new head of the Post-Dispatch, was drunk after Mr. Lehmann's speech.

The following persons were present at the dinner:

ST. LOUIS, April 7, 1907.

Mr. Charles Baker, care of Mr. Harris.

Esteemed Sir—In looking over the Sunday Post-Dispatch today I came across your advertisement for a good, square woman for a wife. I am willing to tie up in matrimony if I should find the right man, who is honorable and has sincere intentions. I am a poor, but good and true woman. Misfortune left me poor in everything, but I work every day of my life for my living. I earn the small sum of $7 per week for myself and 20-months-old baby girl. I am of French descent and have a very lively and pleasant disposition. I would strive to make you as happy as possible. I will expect your answer in the near future and am looking forward to seeing you.

I am 5 feet 7 inches tall and weigh 185 pounds. I am solid and am as healthy as can be. If you answer my letter I will tell you more about myself.

Please return me the photo if you don't like me, and also remember to send me one of yourself. I am wishing for an early marriage and much happiness and joy, for I long to be loved. My heart aches to be loved by a good and true husband. As for your children, I would be all that a good mother could be to them. I am 28 years old and am a settled, sensible, square woman in every respect. I am willing to help you as a mate in every way that I can. Wishing you much happiness, I am, very sincerely yours,

Another Man Would Do.

Miss E. Cunningham of 5327 Manchester avenue is afraid that she is too young for Baker, but if he doesn't want her she would appreciate it if he would find a husband for her. She writes:

ST. LOUIS, April 8, 1907.

Mr. Charles Baker, care of Mr. Harris.

Dear Sir—I was looking over the Post-Dispatch yesterday and saw your ad. As I am looking for a good husband, I thought I would answer it. I am quite a nice, loving girl, if I do say it myself, but you can see for yourself. I have always wanted to go out West and live, for it is too cold here in the winter, and if you think I am too young, for I am only 21 years old, maybe you could get me a husband out there. I know I would be good to the children. I have no one but my mother living and have no money but what I work for.

ST. LOUIS, April 7, 1907.

Mr. Steve Harris—Dear Sir: I take the pleasure of writing you a few lines to let you know that I would like to get acquainted with that Mr. Baker, and if you can make us acquainted I would thank you very much. Please write and tell him I am 30 years old and want a good home. He is just the kind of man I am looking for. A am a brunette and rather good-looking. Well, I have changed my mind and will send my photo in this letter. I hope it will be satisfactory all round. I am very much satisfied with his description, and I hope he will like mine as well. I will close, hoping to hear from him soon and that we will meet very soon. Good-by.

Had Ideal Wedded Life.

Miss Ryen writes from 4751A McMillan avenue to say that she is a "refined widow." She dresses rather stylishly and her husband must be, above all things, liberal. Here's what she wrote:

ST. LOUIS, April 8, 1907.

MR. CHARLES BAKER, care of Mr. Harris.

Dear Sir: If you are really sincere and are looking for an honorable, respectable and refined lady for a wife, perhaps these few lines may appeal to you.

I am a refined widow, 37 years old, have blue eyes and brown hair, am 5 feet 8 inches tall and weigh 132 pounds. I am considered not bad-looking, but what is good looks if one does not have other redeeming qualities. I dress rather stylishly and have an even disposition. I am a sincere, practical woman and one of domestic tastes. I thoroughly understand everything pertaining to housekeeping and am a good cook. My married life was an ideal one and if I could meet an honorable gentleman, one who would be good, kind, loving and true, and above all things, liberal, as far as his means would allow, I might think of marriage again. I am well-known and well-connected here and can give the very best of references and expect the same in return. If this appeals to you I will be very glad to hear from you. Awaiting a response, I am, Yours very truly,

MRS. RYEN.

Is Called Fine Looking.

Mrs. Jennie King of 1127 Tamm avenue writes that she is called a "fine looking lady." She can cook, too. She writes:

ST. LOUIS, April 8, 1907.

Mr. Harris—Seeing your letter in Sunday's Post-Dispatch, I will send you a description of myself, and if it suits you I will be pleased to hear from you. I am a widow, all alone in the world, 38 years old and weigh 185 pounds. My health is good. I have blue eyes, good form and am stylish in apearance. In fact I am called a fine-looking lady. I am a good housekeeper, a good cook and good business woman. I can give good references. If this suits you address

MRS. JENNIE KING.

Would Take Someone Else.

Mrs. Brown of 3311 Franklin avenue fears that she is too old, but she is quite sure she has all the qualifications of a good wife. Her letter reads:

ST. LOUIS, April 7, 1907.

Mr. Baker, care of Mr. Harris.

Dear Sir: I read in the Post-Dispatch about your writing to Mr. Harris and I will write, although I suspect you want a younger woman, as I am 46 years old. I want to get me a home, as my income is small, and more than anything else, I am alone in the world. I am a good, reliable woman, perfectly responsible, and can give the best of references. I am fond of children and will do anything I can to make a home happy. I am a widow and am a good cook and housekeeper. If I am too old for you, Mr. Baker, perhaps you know of someone that would want me. I don't like a city. You, of course, will get lots of letters, for no good woman would object to going to the country. Respectfully,

MRS. BROWN.

At Last—A P. S.

Miss Elizabeth Page, Postoffice Box 550, writes that she likes housekeeping and sings "in the chorus at church." She wants to be an angel after she has passed through this wicked world. Here is her letter:

April 8, 1907.

Charles Baker, care of Mr. Harris.

Dear Sir—While reading Sunday's Post-Dispatch I came across a very interesting article entitled "A Wife Wanted." I assure you I became interested at once. At present I am keeping house for my mother, adopted child (a girl) and myself. I have a very good position, and have had it for a good many years. But I must say right here that I like housekeeping far better than I do being confined in an office all day and I am particularly fond of children, so much so that I adopted this little girl. She is a companion for me. She goes to school and also attends Sunday school and church. I am a Protestant and sing in the chorus at church. I want to say here that I understand cooking perfectly, if that is any recommendation, as it is with most men. I am a brunette, with dark hair and dark gray eyes. I am 5 feet 6½ inches tall. I am an honorable, sensible Christian woman, 40 years of age. I am not what you would call an angel, but would like to be one when I live through this wicked world to the one beyond. I haven't a photo of myself, but expect very soon to get some.

Well, if you consider this worthy of an answer you can address me

MISS ELIZABETH PAGE,
P. O. Box 550.

P. S.—I am very anxious to see New Mexico.

ST. LOUIS, April 8, 1907.

Mr. Baker, care of Mr. Harris.

Dear Sir—I am not accustomed to answering matrimonial letters, but when I read yours in the Post-Dispatch it somewhat appealed to me, for my life too, is very lonely. I am not possessed of wealth, nor am I seeking it. All I ask for is a kind, loving husband who will care for and protect me through life. I am 38 years old, have light hair and blue eyes and am 5 feet 5 inches tall and weigh 130 pounds. I have been employed in St. Louis with one firm for the past eight years. If you see fit to answer this I will give you more particulars. I cannot, at the present writing, send you a photograph, for I haven't one, but would be delighted to receive one of yours.

Trusting I may hear from you in the near future, I remain Respectfully,

From Newburg, Mo., comes a letter from Mrs. Laura Rodman. Her husband must be good, honest and industrious. She would rather live in Newburg than in New Mexico. She writes:

NEWBURG, Mo., April 7, 1907.

I want a good, honest and industrious husband. I am 36 years old, tall, a blond, and weigh 137 pounds. I live in the town of Newburg. I will send my picture, which, by the way, is not a good one. LIFE TERM FOR BURGLAR.

Negro Who Called at Kitchen Doors Found Guilty.

The perseverance which Charles Williams, a negro, exhibited last February in asking at the rear doors of Compton Heights residences for "Mrs. Anderson" has been rewarded by a sentence to imprisonment for life in the penitentiary. A jury that heard the testimony concerning the visit he made to the home of Mrs. Lillian Nieman, at 3816 Shaw avenue, and reviewed his former record as a convict, found him guilty of burglary Thursday morning.

Williams had through his attorney begged Prosecuting Attorney Newton to allow him to plead guilty and accept a 10-year sentence.

"Nothing less than 50 years on a plea of guilty," replied Newton.

Mrs. Nieman found Williams, whose alias is William Rice, in her bedroom. She asked him what he wanted, and in reply the negro warned her not to shout or he would blow her brains out. Mrs. Nieman screamed and Williams plunged through a window.

He was arrested later by detectives on a telephone summons from Mrs. John Vogel of 3515 Pestalozzi street, who noticed Williams making kitchen door calls.

The police obtained two informations for burglary and added the charge against Williams of being a habitual criminal.

The second charge, on which Williams has not yet been tried, is made by Mrs. Louis Meisheimer of 3523 Halliday avenue. From her home $1.86 was taken. From Mrs. Vogel's home Williams took $40.

It was Williams' habit to knock at kitchen doors and if someone responded, he would ask for "Mrs. Anderson," and then depart, but if nobody answered his summons, he would gain entrance with the aid of a skeleton key. Among his victims were Mrs. Earl Cook of 3513 Pestalozzi street, Mrs. Oscar Witte of 3522 Halliday avenue, Adolph Troll of 3644 Shaw avenue, and Henry Troll of 3614 Shaw avenue.

CITY WILL ECONOMIZE.

City Comptroller Player Thursday told a Post-Dispatch reporter that the strictest economy in the management of the various municipal departments would prevail during the fiscal year which began Wednesday. He said the present tax rate of $2.10 on the hundred dollars would be increased to $2.19 or thereabouts, the rate in force during 1905.

"There must be good management," said the guardian of the city's finance. "There are reasons for an increase of the tax rate. First, we have the general maintenance expenses. Next comes the increase in the police force through the new police bill. Then there is the $4,000,000 in general improvement bonds.

"Because of these extra demands on St. Louis' resources, it is necessary that every department be held down in the new appropriations to the lowest point consistent with giving the proper service. This is the policy being followed in the Comptroller's office in preparing the annual appropriation bill."

ANNEXATION APPEALED.

Action Taken in East St. Louis School Case.

An appeal to County Superintendent of Schools Hertel was taken Wednesday in the annexation of the Alta Sita school district to the East St. Louis district.

Two petitions were filed, asking that two parts of the Alta Sita district be detached from the district and added to the East St. Louis district. The prayers of these petitions were granted by the boards of school trustees of the two school townships interested, at their meetings April 1. Preparations were being made by the East St. Louis Board of Education to remove two portable schools from Landsdowne to Alta Sita as temporary relief. The portable schools were vacated last Monday when the Board of Education took possession of the new Jefferson School.

The objectors to the annexation are William Moss, Thomas J. Hannon, A. E. Nordheim, C. W. Underwood, Paul Suske, Tom Birmingham and Robert Harris. Mr. Moss is one of the Alta Sita school directors and appeared before the Board of Trustees, April 1, urging the annexation. Most of the others are negroes, residing in the southern part of the district.

The notice of appeal is signed by George Steinmetz, George Steinmetz Jr., Leo Bulander, John Bulander, Oskar Daniels, M. Prosser, H. Girnt and Joseph S. Schnell. These are residents of nueCentral place, the smallest of the divisions of the district asking to be annexed. A hearing on the appeal will be held within 30 days.

Funeral of James O'Brien.

James O'Brien, a coffee dealer, was buried in Calvary Cemetery Thursday after services at the New Cathedral, Maryland and Newstead avenues. His death early Tuesday was due to injuries received five weeks ago in a fall on the icy pavement in front of his home, 4460 West Belle place. He was 64 years old and had resided in St. Louis 45 years. He is survived by a widow and four children.

How to Beautify Yards.

Prof. Irish's lecture on yard beautifying will be delivered at the Cabanne Presbyterian Church, on King's highway, Friday afternoon, April 12, at 3 o'clock, to which all are invited. The lecture is the result of arrangements made by the members of the Art Committee of the Eighth District of the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs.

Woman's Nightmare

The critical ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass, however, is so fraught with dread, pain, suffering and danger, that the very thought of it fills her with apprehension and horror. There is no necessity for the reproduction of life to be either painful or dangerous. The use of Mother's Friend so prepares the system for the coming event that it is safely passed without any danger. This great and wonderful remedy is always applied externally, and has carried thousands of women through the trying crisis without suffering.

Be Sure to Attend These Sales of Silk Petticoats and Walking Skirts

(Second Floor.)

WE were never more sincere in our advice for your attendance at this store. We know the unusual character of these sales and are anxious that you get the benefit of them. MILLIONAIRE LIVED IN UNLOCKED ROOM AMID CITY'S POOR

N. O. Nelson, St. Louis Philanthropist, Established Home for Indigent Men in Heart of New Orleans' Crime District, and Trusts His Guests.

THERE is one St. Louis millionaire who is not afraid to sleep all winter behind unlocked doors, and that, too, in the section of a big city where crime is generally rampant. That is N. O. Nelson, the manufacturer and philanthropist. Mr. Nelson spent the winter in New Orleans conducting a crusade against consumption, planning a sanitarium and doing, incidentally, some social settlement work.

While Mr. Nelson was doing these things he established an open house for homeless and indigent men, laborers and all others, in a "tough" quarter of New Orleans. He fitted up a large house in the toughest part of the city and posted "welcome" on the doors.

Mr. Nelson lived in one room in the house and in his own words had a "jolly good time."

No Key to Room.

"There was not a key in the door of my room during the entire winter," said Mr. Nelson to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "I had all my personal belongings in the room and slept there with the feeling of greatest security. When I was absent the room stood open and was visited by hundreds of people. Not a thing of any value was taken. A few cigars and some light refreshments that were left over after an entertainment of some of my 'way-up' friends were taken toward the last, but not a thing else was disturbed.

"The home was in a section of New Orleans that was inhabited by the poorest people of the city, but I was not afraid to trust them. That my confidence in these people was well founded is shown by the fact that my property was not disturbed."

Mr. Nelson is one of the pioneer crusaders against consumption. His tuberculosis camp at Indio, Cal., where patients get the outdoor treatment, has been in operation for several years. He found that in New Orleans nearly half the deaths were caused by consumption. He started a movement to build a consumptive sanitarium in the pine forests of Louisiana, about forty miles from New Orleans, which is to be conducted in such a manner that the poor, who are victims of the disease, may have all of the benefits enjoyed by the rich.

Sanitarium Soon Ready.

He succeeded in getting many of the New Orleans officials, societies and prominent business men interested in the project. The sanitarium will soon be ready for occupation and will be under the care of competent physicians. Patients will live out of doors, and have light work to do to afford the necessary exercise and diversion. Mr. Nelson contends that the majority of cases of consumption, if taken hold of before the last stages are reached, can be absolutely cured.

While in New Orleans Mr. Nelson organized and maintains at his own expense a staff of seven or eight trained nurses to wait on the poor sick. When his "way up" friends, as he calls them, visited him in his open house he was his own servant. He served the meals to his guests, and showed that he was not afraid to do even the most menial work.

From New Orleans he went up to Dublin, Ind., and established a social settlement, and then visited the Pacific Coast. He looked after some of his business interests in the larger coast cities, and spent some time in his Indio camp. He returned to St. Louis a few days ago to spend the summer at Le Claire and at his desk in his office at Tenth and Chestnut streets.

MISS PATTEN TO WED A DIPLOMAT

Engagement to Ranking Minister From Denmark Has Been Reported.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Society expects to hear at almost any time the announcement of the engagement of Miss Mary Patten and Constantine Brun, the Minister from Denmark, and the ranking Minister of the Diplomatic Corps. Miss Patten will neither affirm nor deny the rumor to her friends, but Mr Brun is said to have confided the fact of the engagement in several society women.

Society is highly delighted with the prospect of having another American reigning as a diplomatic hostess. There are already more than a half dozen American women in the corps, including Baroness Von Sternberg, wife of the German Ambassador; Mrs. Jusserand, wife of the French Ambassador; Mme. Hauge, wife of the Minister from Norway; Mme. Van Swinderen, who as Miss Glover, married the Minister from the Netherlands, and handsome Baroness Menebuer, who married the present Minister to this country from Belgium, while he was serving at the legation in Mexico where he father was Ambassador.

Miss Patten will be hostess at a dinner Monday night when, it is said, her engagement to Mr. Brun may be announced. Miss Patten is the sister of Gen. Henry C. Corbin's wife and with her sisters, Josephine and Helen, both unmarried, share the large fortune left by her mother, who became identified with early mining interests in the West. Miss Patten was reported engaged to Representative Bourke Cockran previous to his marriage to Miss Ide, and then, as now, she merely laughed at her friends when they teased her neither denying or affirming the rumor.

Boy Missing From Home.

It was reported to the police Thursday that John Victor Hagedorn, aged 14, of 1242 South Broadway, has been missing from his home since last Saturday. He is four feet tall and weighs 100 pounds. He wore dark knee trousers and a blue cap.

ST. LOUIS MAY BE HIS OWN ASHMAN

Municipal Assembly to Be Asked to Appropriate $100,000 for Purpose.

WORKING ON ORDINANCE

Comptroller Player Indorses Plan as Suggested by Street Commissioner.

Comptroller Player has indorsed the recommendation of Street Commissioner Valliant that the City of St. Louis go into the ash-hauling business. He will incorporate in his new annual appropriation ordinance an item of $100,000 for that purpose.

Commissioner Valliant's plan is for the city to remove all ashes from residences, small stores and plants. Big steam plants and manufactories are not included. With the indorsement of the Comptroller and the recommendation of the Street Commissioner the ordinance which is being drafted is expected to pass the Municipal Assembly with practically no opposition.

"Commissioner Valliant's recommendation is timely," Comptroller Player said to a Post-Dispatch reporter Thursday. "He asks for $100,000 to do the work for the new year and I have included it in my annual budget. Some special features of the Street Cleaning Department will be reduced to hold the general appropriation of that department down, but the plan means a general saving in the work."

Some of the figures for street cleaning since 1901 to the end of the fiscal year, 1906-7, are as follows: A general increase in appropriation from $678,275.12 to $1,855,862.64. An increase in block cleaning system from $11,908 to $175,000. An increase in stone, wood blocks and asphalt pavement cleaning from $53,000 to $320,000. An increase in cost of street repairs with gravel and macadam from $29,900 to $210,000. An increase in miscellaneous expenses from $69,187 to $130,000. An increase in cost of reconstruction of streets from $37,000 to $160,000.

"St. Louis has been going too fast in street improvements," said the Comptroller, "and we can readily reduce some features in order to carry out Mr. Valliant's ash hauling plan. It really means that by removing ashes from residences and small plants, the greatest labor of the street cleaning department is solved at its root."

Commissioner Valliant said Thursday that the ordinance which the Assembly will be asked to pass was drafted from the one in force in New York City. The New York measure has embodied in it some of the most salient features of the one governing Paris, the cleanest city in the world.

Interests Every Householder.

"The proposition is one that interests every householder in St. Louis," he said. "The ordinance will provide that ashes be placed in one kind of receptacle, old bottles, furniture and rags in another, and refuse and garbage in another.

"The city can do the work in the most advantageous way and bring about better sanitary and sightly conditions. The city has many sinkholes and depressions to fill, for which this debris will be valuable.

"If the measure is adopted some of the city teams can be used and private teams can be employed. In time, should the plan prove a success, a municipal ash-hauling system should be established."

Harbor and Wharf Commissioner Whyte approves of the plan. He says he has several hundred feet of wharf front in North St. Louis that he wants filled. President Reilly of the Board of Public Improvements also indorses it.

The New Life of Christ will be shown at the Lyceum, west side of Sixth street, between Market and Walnut, on Thursday, the 11th, at 3 p. m. and 8 p. m.

Chorus Girls Accuse Manager.

Following out their determination to "get even," Misses Birdie Carleton, Jeanie Loftus and Nellie Palmer, discharged members of the "City Sports" company playing at the Gayety Theater, caused a police-court summons to be issued Thursday against Phil Sheridan, their former manager. He is charged with disturbing their peace.

Sheridan was not in court Thursday when the cases against the three chorus girls, arrested on complaint of Miss Viola Herman, were called. Judge Tracy continued the cases to Friday. Miss Herman, who does the "Blackbird pie" dance in the production, says the other girls slapped her.

TWO-MINUTE TRIALS IS AVERAGE IN CITY HALL POLICE COURT

Rapid Work in Judge Tracy's Tribunal Brings to City Treasury $35,000 Per Year in Fines Paid in Cash—Workhouse Sentences.

A CASE every two minutes of the session—that is the record of the City Hall Police Court, officially the First District Police Court of the City of St. Louis. This Court, having jurisdiction in a territory embracing more than one-third of the city's population, is said to be the largest of its kind in the world. Every year it pays to the city in fines over $35,000.

Two other police courts in St. Louis, the Dayton street and the Wyoming street courts, dispose of a relatively smaller number of cases, having jurisdiction respectively north of Washington avenue and south of Arsenal street.

To the City Hall Police Court go all cases of violations of the city ordinances in the populous territory between Washington avenue and Arsenal street, the river and the western city limits. In addition, the City Hall court has original jurisdiction over all complaints preferred by the City Chemist and the Building, License, Street and Health departments, no matter in what part of the city the complaint originates.

During the fiscal year ending April 10, Judge Tracy in the City Hall court heard and disposed of 14,419 cases. The number of cases disposed of in five years preceding that date was 73,252, an average of 14,650 cases a year. On the basis of 300 court days in the year, the number of cases disposed of each day was 48.

This does not include the cases docketed and continued. For every case disposed of there is an average of at least one continuance. On the basis of 48 cases disposed of, a conservative estimate of the average number of cases on the docket every day is 96.

Rapid Work on Docket.

Usually the docket is gone through by the court in three hours time, from 9 to 12 in the morning. This means that the Judge takes up a case every two minutes that he is on the bench. Counting only those cases of which some final disposition is made, the average time for a case is four minutes.

Since 1903, notwithstanding the growth of the city, the number of cases each year has remained practically the same. The high-water mark was reached in the World's Fair year, when 17,564 cases, 3000 more than in the ordinary year, were disposed of.

During the past five years the fines assessed in all cases amounted to $694,-619, an average of nearly $140 000 a year, or for each court day of $463. In 1903, before Judge Tracy was appointed to his present position, the fines amounted to $83,181. The total jumped the next year to $144,476. In the World's Fair year it reached $180,118. For the last fiscal year the total was $154,043.

Of the total amount assessed in fines, about one-fourth is paid into the city treasury. During the past five years the court has yielded to the city $172,360. It has been self-sustaining for the past four years. In 1903 only $17,673 was paid in from the court. For the year just ending the amount was $36,945. World's Fair year it yielded $45,736.

Workhouse Service.

As a result of fines imposed in the City Hall police court during the five years and not paid, prisoners have served a total of over 1300 years in the Workhouse. Such fines during the year just ending aggregated $50,837. The total for the five years was $227,943. Fines are "worked out" at the rate of 50 cents a day, not including Sundays.

On the docket a portion of the cases are marked "otherwise returned." In these cases fines aggregating $36,198 were imposed during the five years. Under this head are included judgments by default, cases in which appeals are taken to the Circuit Court or in which the fines are stayed by the Mayor or Police Justice, changes of venue and cases returned "nulla bona."

When a prisoner is released from a police station on his personal bond and fails to appear in police court on the day set for his trial, the case is "nulla bona." The number of such cases materially decreased during the past year, as shown by a comparison of the fines imposed. During the World's Fair year the fines in "nulla bona" cases amounted to $44,455. The next year the amount had fallen to $18,479 and last year to $2907. This was the result of the requiring of real bonds.

A large number of cases each year are appealed. The total amount of fines in such cases during the five years was $164,891. Per the year just past it was $52,914—a greater amount than was paid into the city treasury directly from the police court.

St. Louis, with a population of nearly 800,000, has only three police courts, practically only two. In New York, with a population five times as great, there are 27 police courts.

One visitor to the court during the World's Fair was a police court justice from Manchester, England. A "clothesline fight" was tried and settled in 15 minutes. It was an unusually quiet police court case.

The eyes of the English magistrate opened wide in wonder. "I would have spent four hours on that case," he told Judge Tracy. "You Americans certainly work fast. I like your way."

Since Judge Tracy has been on the bench a number of cases have been carried up to the Supreme Court. Without exception his decisions have been upheld.

METHODISTS LEAD IN CHURCH GAINS

Statistician Shows Last Year to Have Been One of Spiritual Growth.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Dr. H. K. Carroll, church statistician, is out with some interesting figures regarding the growth of the church population in the United States during the year 1906. For many years Dr. Carroll was an editor of the New York Independent. Before that he was a preacher. Recently he has made a specialty of statistical work and is regarded as an authority in that line of religious investigation.

The year 1906, according to his figures, was a good one for the churches. It showed a larger gain than 1905, though still behind the gains of 1903 and 1904. The total communicants now enrolled in the Protestant and Catholic churches of the United States are 32,283,658. The clergymen number 159,503; the churches 207,707.

Nearly one-third, or 11,000,000, of the total church members in the United States are Catholics, who, however, make their estimates by "parishes" and not from the church enrollment books.

The records show that the Methodists made the largest gains in 1906—116,475. The Lutherans added 116,087, of whom about 100,000 were by immigration. The Baptist gains were 93,152, and Episcopalians, 19,228. Considerably less than half of the population of the United States is thus shown to be within the professed fellowship of the church. The figures, however, do not include the large numbers who sympathize and aid in church work, but are not openly allied.

The exact figures of church communicants for 1906, as collaborated by Dr. Carroll, are as follows:

Catholics (nine bodies), 11,143,455; Methodists (17 bodies), 6,551,891; Baptist (14 bodies), 5,140,770; Lutheran (22 bodies), 1,967,433; Presbyterians (12 bodies), 1,771,877; Episcopalians (2 bodies), 846,492; Reformed (3 bodies), 442,-359; Saints (Latter Day) (2 bodies), 296,-234; United Brethren (2 bodies), 295,239; Evangelical (2 bodies), 179,329; Jewish (2 bodies), 143,000; Dunkards (4 bodies), 121,194; Friends (4 bodies), 118,752; Adventists (6 bodies), 96,487; Mennonites (12 bodies) 61,690; Unitarians, 71,000; Universalists, 55,831; Moravians, 14,262.

In addition the Christian Scientists are estimated at 80,197; the (Dowie) Christian Catholics, at 40,000, and the Salvation Army at 28,500.

JAPS STILL ENTERING U.S.

8000 of 10,000 in Mexico Have Crossed Border.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GALVESTON, Tex., April 11.—Marcus Braun, special Immigration Agent, has returned from Mexico with the report that of the 10,000 Japanese in Mexico two months ago, 8000 have entered the United States. Many hundreds of these Japanese were turned back at the border when the act became effective, but the greater percentage of them have beat their way through Texas into this country.

Braun says the Japanese are still being imported into Mexico by the hundreds, and he has discovered several schemes they are working to gain admission to the states. He has reported these discoveries to the Immigration Department. The Japanese in Mexico have been offered big money to work in the mines, but refuse.

ROOSEVELT STARTS WAR ON PENROSE

Displaces Senator's Protege to Give Negro Tyler a $4000 Position.

OHIO SENATORS AGREE

President Wanted to Give Him Berth at Home, but Was Opposed.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—President Roosevelt, by the appointment of Ralph W. Tyler, the Columbus (O.) negro, as auditor for the Navy Department, declared war on Senator Boise Penrose of Pennsylvania, who, the President insists, is one of the ringleaders in the "conspiracy" to defeat his candidate and policies.

The appointment of Tyler displaces William Wallace Brown of Pennsylvania, a political protege of Senator Penrose. Brown is transferred from the auditorship, which pays $4000 a year, to an assistant attorneyship in the Department of Justice, at a salary of $3000 a year. Politicians here interpret this as indicating the intention of the President to reduce the representation in Federal offices of men whose sponsors are not for him and his policies.

Tyler was recommended by Booker T. Washington, the negro educator of the South. The President intended originally to make him Surveyor of the Port of Cincinnati, but he was told that if such an appointment was made it would seriously interferew ith the political prospects of his son-in-law, Representative "Nick" Longworth. Mr. Longworth himself called at the White House and protested against the appointment.

The President was told that if the negro was appointed to the Cincinnati post it would interfere also with the plans of certain men to give Secretary Taft the Hamilton County delegation. The President decided in view of these statements not to send Tyler to Cincinnati. There was a vacancy at Columbus in a Federal place. The President had about decided to appoint him to this office when there came such a howl of protest from that section that the President changed his mind and decided not to appoint Tyler to any Ohio office.

The President decided on the appointment of Tyler to offset the dissatisfaction of the negro Republicans of Ohio and other Northern States growing out of the discharge without honor of the negro soldiers of the Twenty-fifth Infantry, who were suspected of having shot up Brownsville, Tex. Senator Forker was championing the cause of the discharged negro soldiers and the appointment of Tyler was decided upon to checkmate him, and to prove that the President is a good friend of his "Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendment brethren," as he refers to them.

Ohio Senators Satisfied.

The President finally selected one of the auditorships, but as each one of the six were giving satisfactory accounts of themselves it required some time to adjust things. Finally a place in the Department of Justice as a special attorney was found for Auditor Brown, a protege of Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, and he was persuaded that it would be to his advantage to take it. He is a lawyer and the work assigned to him requires a legal training.

There is believed to be no question but that the Ohio Senators will agree to the prompt confirmation of Tyler to the office. Personally, they have no objection to him, and both of them indorsed him for a consular appointment about a year ago, but the President did not find it possible to give him a post abroad. It was stated at the White House today that the announcement of this appointment on the day when Senator Foraker was to speak in Ohio was but a coincidence. It is known, of course, that it is the intention of Mr. Foraker to discuss the Brownsville affair while in Ohio, and to undertake to convince the people, especially the negroes, that a gross injustice was committed when the soldiers of the Twenty-fifth Infantry were dismissed without a trial. The appointment of Tyler announced at this particular time is intended to minimize anything Mr. Foraker may say.

The office of Register of the Treasury is the only important Federal office in Washington that has been held uninterruptedly in Republican administrations by a negro. This particular office has gone to representative negroes by common consent and is now filled by William T. Vernon of Kansas. As Auditor of the Navy Department, Mr. Tyler will come in contact generally with naval officers.

PRESIDENT'S PET DOG SICK.

Tree Climbing Animal Suffering from Pneumonia.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—"Skip," the President's tree-climbing dog, which was given him while he was out in Colorado hunting mountain lions, is sick. Whether it is because he has been worried by the bull terrier recently presented to Mrs. Roosevelt or because he is grieving because of the banishment of Rollo, the St. Bernard pup, is not known. All that any of the White House attaches know is that Skip has been ailing for the past week or more and today Archie took him down to a dog doctor, who said that he feared Skip had pneumonia.

Skip is being given the best possible care. He has a soft bed in the basement of the White House and is given any tid-bit his appetite craves. The dog is a small hound and the President, in writing of his experiences while hunting mountain lions in Colorado, said the dog was the gamest little animal he had ever seen. Skip belonged to a pack of hounds out in Colorado, but when his owner saw how fond the President was of him he gave him to Mr. Roosevelt.

Approve Ash Removal Plan.

Street Commissioner Valliant approves the suggestion of Mrs. Henrietta Parsons Gill of the Hamilton Hotel that the city undertake the work of removing ashes. He has asked the Comptroller to include in $100,000 for this purpose. Mr. Valliant believes the expense of hauling ashes could be cut down by taking contracts for the filling of depressions. Ashes could also be utilized to good advantage, Harbor and Wharf Commissioner Whyte says, in filling in several hundred feet of wharf that he desires made in North St. Louis.

TO AMATEUR PHOTOGRAPHERS

OUR DARK ROOM and other space awarded to the developing and printing from photographic films and plates is on our third floor.

The limited space which we are able to allot on our first floor to the display and sale of photographic materials gives but a faint idea of the importance of this department which, through our mail order department, receives patronage from many states.

The quality of our work and our low prices both call for your attention and patronage.

ATTENDS CONCERT; LOSES RICH WRAP

Mrs. John W. Loader Sure One Left Behind Shows Intentional Exchange.

NO CLEWS TO THE THIEF

Amphion Club Event's Pleasure Marked by Disappearance of Handsome Garment.

Attired in a pale blue satin gown covered by a handsomely tailored, satin-lined, black broadcloth ulster nearly as long as the gown itself, Mrs. John W. Loader went to the Amphion Club concert at the Odeon last Tuesday evening.

Going home, Mrs. Loader's wrap, or the only thing which was at hand as a cover for her gown and as a protection against the cold, was a shabby, cheap, dusty-looking black coat, much mussed and wrinkled, several sizes too large for Mrs. Loader's figure, and with a torn pocket containing some very soiled cotton handkerchiefs.

How the transformation came about has not been unraveled and Mrs. Loader continues to lament the loss of her own handsome garment.

In attending the concert, Mrs. Loader gave her wrap and hat to the maid in charge, as usual, and spoke to her in particular, regarding a couple of gold hatpins in her hat. The maid took these in charge by request and maintains that she hung the coat on a hook directly under the hat.

"We had aisle seats," Mrs. Loader said to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "and we were among the first out. There were perhaps ten other women in the room when I called for my wraps, and the maid said she had laid my things out on a dressing table and that she would be through to help me with them in just a moment. She handed my hatpins to me and I stood in front of the dressing table while I pinned on my hat.

"I picked up the coat which she had indicated as mine, and immediately turned to her and said: 'You have given me the wrong coat. This one is not mine.'

"There was no way to account for the change in the garments. Mine was simply gone and the other had been left me.

"The thing seemed so atrocious that I could not believe but that some woman had made a mistake and would notice that she did not have her own wrap. I have waited, inquired and advertised without avail. Now I think there is no doubt that the thing was done deliberately and shall exhaust every means of bringing the offender to justice. The coat represented a $90 value and it is more than I am willing to lose passively."

Mrs. Loader has made the description of the garment public and has no intention of dropping the matter.

She describes the coat as long, tight-fitting, black broadcloth; lined throughout with black satin and distinguished with a broad shawl or "Tuxedo" collar of black satin, with turn-back cuffs to match.

Misfortune has attended Mrs. Loader before. She once suffered the loss of some jewels from the dressing table in her apartment at the Lorraine Hotel. A quantity of clothing was taken from her wardrobe at an other time.

DEATH OF BABY BEING INVESTIGATED

Little One Expired Suddenly After It Had Been Taken From a Home.

The death of a girl baby, 2 weeks old, at the home of Mrs. R. Whitey, 5551 De Giverville avenue, early Thursday, a few hours after it had been taken from a home conducted by Mrs. Alice Baxter at 1423 Cass avenue, is the subject of an investigation by the police. The child's death was reported by Miss Edith Hanley, aged 17, Mrs. Whitey's daughter, after Dr. Eugene Lewis of 5587 Page boulevard had been called and found that the infant had been dead several hours.

The body was taken to the morgue. The Coroner ordered an autopsy and Mrs. Baxter, Miss Hanley and Dr. Lewis were called to furnish statements as to their connection with the infant.

Miss Hanley told Coroner Lloyd that she got the baby from Mrs. Baxter Tuesday afternoon, intending to adopt it. The child did not seem to be sick, she said, when she received it, except that its mouth was sore.

Mrs. Baxter said the baby was well when it left her care. She said she didn't know the parents of the child. She had had it nearly two weeks, she said.

Dr. Lewis was unable to tell what caused the baby's death. He said he made only a superficial examination of its body after finding it had been dead some time.

Will Provides for Negro.

By the will of John P. Breckinridge, filed in Clayton Probate Court Thursday, the bulk of his estate is to go to the German Protestant Orphans' Asylum for the erection of any suitable building there of which the asylum is most in need. The will provides that the name of the donor be inscribed in the building. Of a tract of 35 acres of land on the St. Charles rock road 15 acres is to be sold to pay some small bequests that are made and the remaining 20 acres is to be held by Thomas A. Breckinridge during his life and after his death to revert to the German Protestant Orphans' Asylum. It is provided that Jacob Boswell, a negro who is now living on the tract, be allowed to remain there until his death. A bequest of $200 is made to the Five Fee Baptist Cemetery.

Swallowed Poison on the Street.

Mrs. Elsie Wright, 19 years old, is recovering at the City Hospital from the effects of an ounce of laudanum which she swallowed in an attempt to end her life as she walked along Olive street about 6 p. m. Wednesday. She was found by a lodger at the home of Mrs. T. M. Tilden, 1606 Olive street, where she and her husband, James Wright, also board, after she had staggered into the hallway and fallen unconscious. Mrs. Wright refused to give any reason for wishing to take her life. James Wright is 21 years old. He is a painter of billboards.

Junk Dealer in Federal Trouble.

John Stamps, a junk dealer, arrested Wednesday at Herculaneum, Mo., will be given a hearing before United States Commissioner Morsey Saturday on a charge of using the mails illegally. He is said to have received loans from a firm in Quincy, Ill., to which he wrote stating that he needed the money to carry on his business. Later it was learned, according to the Postoffice authorities, that he was not using the money for business purposes.

WATERWAY PLANS.

Senator Warner Says Commission's Work Not Begun.

Senator William Warner, who went to Kansas City Thursday morning after a conference in St. Louis with promoters of the Mississippi deep-waterway project said the Inland Waterways Commission, of which he is a member, had held no meeting yet. He said he did not know what would be the first step in the investigation of inland waterways which had been asked for by the President.

Those present at luncheon at the Mercantile Club Wednesday when Senator Warner was entertained were W. K. Kavanaugh, president of the Lakes to the Gulf Association; James E. Smith, president of the Business Men's League; W. F. Saunders, secretary of the Business Men's League; Dr. WJ McGee, who is a member of the Inland Commission, and Cyrus P. Walbridge.

At the luncheon Dr. McGee said he had prepared an article upon the improvement of rivers leading from the Great Lakes. The thing needful, he said, was to reduce the sediment-charged water in the main trunk and principal tributaries to relatively clear water. The Missouri River alone, he said, deposited 200,000,000 tons of sediment annually in the Mississippi. This sediment might be disposed of by filtration, or settling basins at the heads of navigable channels or what probably would be more practicable, the adjustment of the river beds of tributaries, their currents and their banks.

Senator Warner gave assurance that Kansas City was deeply interested in the deep-waterway project.

DIDN'T SPEAK TO MEN.

Jilted, Woman Kept Vow for 27 Years.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SHOSHONE, Wyo., April 11.—Miss Jennie E. Carroll, who, according to advices received here, died a few days ago at the house of her sister, near South Pass City, had not, so far as was known to those who were familiar with her life, spoken to a man for 27 years.

She was 40 years old at the time of her death, and ever since she came to Wyoming, 18 years ago, had made her home with her sister, Mrs. Ella Cobbler, a widow. She went to her sister's home to live two years before Mrs. Cobbler's husband died, but it was understood, it is said, when she went there that she did not speak to him.

The story runs that 27 years ago Miss Cartoll was deeply in love and engaged to be married. The date for the marriage was set and invitations to the wedding were issued. Guests assembled to witness the ceremony, but the young man did not appear. Miss Carroll never saw or heard from him afterward. She took a vow that night, the story runs, never again to speak to a man, and kept that vow religiously to the day of her death. Before she died she requested her sister to permit no men to attend her funeral.

change is 75 cents per $1000, in another $1 per $1000, and in the third $2 per $1000. The groups will be formulated in a day or two and will be on file in each bank associated with the Clearing House in Missouri and all adjacent states the exchange will be $1 per $1000.

MUESSEMEYER RELEASED.

Judge Taylor Sees No Case in Quernheim Charge.

Harry Muessemeyer, arrested on a warrant issued by the Prosecuting Attorney charging implication with Edward Gergmann in the murder of Mrs. Kate Quernheim of 3720 Vets avenue, March 7 last, was ordered released by Judge Taylor Wednesday, at the end of the State's testimony at the preliminary hearing.

Mrs. Margaret Shannon of 2619 St. Louis avenue, who stated at the Coroner's inquest that she saw a man of Muessemeyer's appearance in front of the Quernheim home on the night of the tragedy, was positive at the hearing that the defendant was not the man. His eyes and his height were different from those of the man she saw, she declared. No testimony was introduced by the defense, the Court holding that the State had failed to make a case.

Bergmann, wanted for the killing of Mrs. Quernheim, is still a fugitive.

NEW ORDINANCE TO HELP FIRE SALES

Canvas Signs May Be as Big as Merchants Choose Under Smith's Plan.

LODGING HOUSES DEFINED

Five Beds to Make Owner Liable to Regulations for Them.

Parts of the downtown business section may assume the appearance of the World's Fair Pike if Building Commissioner Smith's ordinance relating to huge canvas signs which he is drafting passes the new Municipal Assembly.

The present ordinance provides that no signs hung outside of buildings shall be over three and a half feet in width, and it applies to those made of canvas as well as of wood and iron. Permits are necessary before they can be suspended and the fee is $1 for every 25 square feet.

In the new ordinance the ban will be removed from canvas signs, and business men may cover the entire front of their buildings with such placards if they choose. The price of the permit for canvas signs will be fixed at $1 for every 100 square feet displayed.

"The present ordinance works a hardship," said Commissioner Smith to a Post-Dispatch reporter Thursday. "It was intended primarily to safeguard the public. There is no danger in signs on canvas or bunting, no matter how large. Firms having removal sales find the present restrictions irksome, and the projected measure is for their relief."

The commissioner will also present an ordinance defining what constitutes a lodging house. This point has been a source of confusion in the past. According to his intention where five beds or more are rented the owner must comply with the regulations demanded of lodging house keepers. The measure is a copy of the one in force in New York City.

The Municipal Assembly will be asked to amend the ordinance relating to theaters, to regulate many new places of amusement that are springing up in various parts of the city. They include electric theaters, small vaudeville houses and picture shows. The present regulations do not touch them, and some action is deemed necessary, as seven fires have been reported in them since January.

The ordinance relating to staircases in crowded factory buildings is to be made more stringent and the Building Commissioner will ask for power to order manufactories vacated where lives are jeopardized by insufficient equipment in this respect.

THE REACH BASEBALL

Has Been Used by American League for Ten Years.

In the early years of baseball the use of all kinds of balls was permissible, provided the balls were somewhere near the size designated. As a natural result no two balls were alike—some were dead, others were lively. They varied in size, weight and substance, so that it was nothing unusual for a ball to be batted out of commission in two or three innings.

The Reach ball was the result of the demand for a standard ball. It filled every condition to the letter. Reach balls are exactly the same size, weight and of the same substance, and what is more are guaranteed to last the full nine innings. The Reach ball has been adopted officially by the American League, and has been used for 10 years by the League.

CUMMINS FOR PRESIDENT.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DES MOINES, Io., April 11.—Formal preparations began today to boom Gov. Albert B. Cummins for the Republican presidential nomination. The Legislature adjourned Tuesday and the Cummins leaders remained over until yesterday. The Des Moines Register and Leader, the Governor's official organ, made the significant statement this morning that there had never been any particular affection between Cummins and Roosevelt and that the President had never expressed any special sympathy for the reforms for which Gov. Cummins has long been fighting.

The day before the Legislature adjourned Cummins' friends obtained the defeat of resolutions indorsing the Roosevelt third term candidacy. A press bureau has been organized and systematic attempts will be made from this time forward to organize the West in support of the Cummins movement.

EASTER DRESS PARADE.

Mrs. Osborn Says It Is No Longer Fashionable.

Mrs. Osborn, leading fashion authority, in the April issue of The Delineator, writes: "It is no longer fashionable to go specially gowned to Easter service."

The thousands who paraded the avenues and boulevards on Easter Sunday, dressed expressly for view at that time were out of fashion, according to Mrs. Osborn, who ought to know. She continues: "The incongruity of turning Easter into a dress carnival has become as widely recognized as the absurdity of receiving callers indiscriminately on the first day of January."

Mrs. Osborn's letter in the April number of The Delineator is not only of great value to the woman rather limited as to wardrobe who nevertheless wants to look smart and well dressed on all occasions, but to the woman more lavishly equipped, for her multiplicity of costumes does not lessen her desire for some special gown into which she can slip at any moment and be comfortable. Every woman who reads this letter will benefit by her advice and suggestions in the selection of the styles and materials best adapted to the dress for common usage—a dress which should be strictly correct and one of which the wearer will not tire quickly.

Secretary Dryden says 461 contracts were let, involving a total expenditure of $2,184,756.87. Supt. Travilla of the Street Department has made an unofficial report in which he gives figures showing the length of streets, street railway mileage, improvements and character of paving.

Attempted Suicide as Divorce Ground.

An attempt made by her husband to end his life by shooting himself is one of the grounds on which Susanna Schaeffer seeks divorce from Joseph Schaeffer. In addition she charges that he was habitually intoxicated, that he cursed and abused her, called her vile names and that he is a vagrant "within the meaning of the law." They were married in Hungary, May 9, 1897, and separated in St. Louis, June 17, 1906.

CONDEMNED TO DIE AS SPY, ESCAPED

Frank P. Reilley, St. Louis Adventurer, Tells of Experience in Honduras.

SENTENCED TO BE SHOT

After Being Chained in Hut for Weeks He Eventually Gets Away.

FRANK P. REILLEY.

Frank P. Reilley, world-wanderer at the age of 20, related to a Post-Dispatch reporter Thursday the details of his escape from prison in Honduras, South America, after he had been condemned to be shot as a Nicaraguan spy.

Reilley is now at the home of his mother, Mrs. Etta F. Hendrix, 3036 Lucas avenue, after a period of adventurous wandering since he was 12 years old. He arrived in St. Louis Wednesday from Memphis, Tenn.

"I was returning from a secret mission in Honduras Jan. 4 last, when I was captured by a party of Honduran soldiers," Reilley said. "They marched me about twelve miles to a village called Ba-tal, near the coast. Here I was confined in a rude hut—nothing more than four stakes driven in the ground and thatched over with banana leaves. For two weeks I was compelled to lie on the ground, tied hand and foot to stakes driven in the earth. They fed me nothing but dried bananas.

Sentenced to Be Killed.

"Then, when I was feeling to weak to care much what happened, I was tried by a drum-head court martial and sentenced to be shot April 14. I wouldn't have much longer to live if I hadn't got away.

"After I had been sentenced the soldiers got a little more merciful. They took off my grass ropes that bound me and allowed me to walk about the hut. I had manacles on my feet, attached to a heavy ball, so that I couldn't run away. Anyway, there were 12 soldiers watching me and I wouldn't have had much chance in that direction.

"I wandered about the hut hours at a time, thinking of a way to escape. It was only about fifteen feet square and I though I would go crazy. One day, about in the second week of March, one of the soldiers asked me what I would give to get away. I saw my chance. In a belt under my clothes—the soldiers had never searched me—I had a pouch containing $750, paid to me by the Nicaraguan Government. I told the man I would give him $50 if he could arrange for my escape. He promised and I paid him. He said he would sell his mother for $50.

Helped to Escape.

The man kept his word. I had begun to think I was done for, when one night I woke up to hear a step in the hut. Four soldiers in the hut, one in each corner, were sleeping soundly. I heard a man—my man, that I had bought—warning me to be quiet. Then I felt that my feet were free. I learned later he had unlocked the manacles with a key cut out of a piece of wood. That had been easy enough, as the shackles were old-fashioned, and the key resembled the sort used to open a water hydrant.

"I was still doubtful about the soldiers. The man seemed to know my thought and he pointed to the soldiers in the corner. I saw it was something more than sleep that made them so motionless. My man had drugged then during the evening. The soldiers on the outside were in the same condition. Together we set to work and bound them all, though my limbs ached from the long confinement. Finally I bound the man who had aided me so that suspicion wouldn't attach to him for my escape.

Crawled to a Mule.

"By this time I had grown so weak that I couldn't walk. I crawled on my hands and knees about forty yards to the place where my man had tied the mule taken from me when I was captured. My hands are still so swollen that I use them with difficulty.

"Once I got on that mule I made good time. It was about 2 a. m. when I escaped. I went a roundabout way to the coast, because I was still dressed in the Nicaraguan uniform that the soldiers had put on me after I had been condemned.

"By 5 o'clock I had reached the town of Salada on the coast and taken passage on the German steamer Bitschin. The captain saw the fix I was in and he made me pay the rest of the money I carried, nearly $700, for passage. I landed in New Orleans dead broke and worked my way up the river.

"I've had enough of wandering," Reilley concluded. "That experience in Honduras was enough for me. I'm going to stay in St. Louis now and settle down."

Wanted, children to come to the Lyceum, west side of Sixth street, between Market and Walnut, on Saturday, April 13. Each child who is accompanied by a cat or a dog will be presented with five tickets, good any day except Saturday and Sunday.

Many Ordinances in Last Assembly.

Six hundred and sixty ordinances passed at the last session of the Municipal Assembly are being indexed by William E. Van Pelt of the City Register's office preparatory to being bound and printed. They comprise a greater amount of legislation than was enacted by any previous Assembly. Most of the ordinances relate to street and alley improvements. The last of the list is the McKinley franchise bill.

WINDOW THIEVES GET $1000 BOOTY

Jewelry Stolen After Smashing Plate Glass Front of Cass Avenue Firm.

Jewelry valued at $1000 was taken from the show window of Grimm & Gorly, jewelers and florists, at 1510 Cass avenue at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night after the plate glass has been smashed with a rock. Two trays of rings valued at $650, a pair of diamond earrings valued at $300 and a diamond brooch valued at $75 were taken.

V. J. Gorly, with the members of his family, was in the rear of the store when the rock crashed through the window, and he ran to the front, but before he reached the street the thieves had made their escape. Several persons on the street said they saw three men running away immediately following the sound of the breaking glass.

Several rings were found by boys in an alley running from Fourteenth to Fifteenth streets between Cass avenue and O'Fallon street. Patrolman C. E. Murphy, who was in a grocery store across the way at the time of the robbery saw the boys lighting matches in the alley and arrested them on suspicion of knowing who smashed the window. The boys gave their names as Schuster and Grolock. They said they saw a man carrying a tray run into the alley, but they refused to describe him.

13 AT TABLE, ONE DIED.

Man Who Noticed Number Expired While Dressing.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ANDERSON, Ind., April 11.—William G. Wynant, whose burial took place yesterday, was one of 13 men at a dinner party in Indianapolis Friday last. All were stockholders of the Kanawha Coal and Mining Co., and met in Indianapolis for business.

Wynant was the first to observe the number at the table. Others commented on the fact that it was Friday. "Some one will have to die soon," was one of the remarks. Wynant returned home Saturday feeling well. He attended church Sunday and was preparing to go out with his wife to supper, when he fell dead while putting on his gloves.

"UP TO STANDARD," STUDENTS TO SING

Will Brave Faculty's Censor at Chicago by References to John D.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 11.—University of Chicago students will brave the faculty censor when they present "Sure Enough Segregation," the "Black Friar's" annual comic opera. John D. Rockefeller and Standard Oil will receive frequent mention in the songs and jokes of the production.

"It's Up to Standard," one of the songs, sets forth that the university standard is the "standard of dough." The chorus, which will be sung by one of the student "prima donnas," is as follows:

"O! Standard! O! Standard! No matter what you do!
Remember that we love you at the old Chicago U."

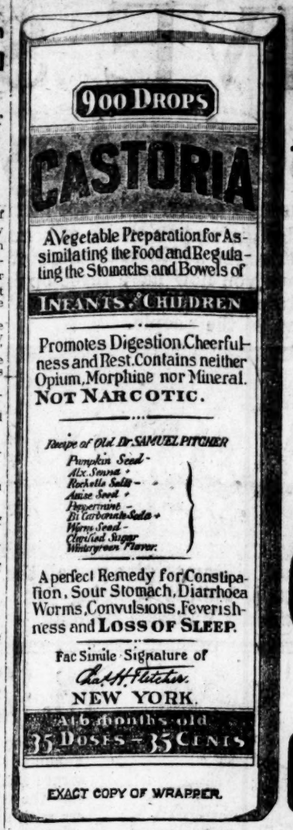

The verses run:

"We've got a great school at Chicago U.,
It's certainly up to the Standard;
The courses of study that they put you through
Are certainly up to the Standard.
Some standards are good as results of hard toil—
The standard we set is the good Standard Oil;
Our dear Uncle John took it out of the soil—
We're certainly up to the Standard.

"When millions we need at Chicago U.,
It's certainly up to the Standard;
We call on John D. and we say, 'Come through'—
We're certainly onto the Standard.
Some standards are high and some standards are low;
The standard for us is the standard of dough—
When we need new buildings, as all people know,
It's certainly up to the Standard."

SHARPERS STOLE GROW'S FORTUNE

Late Congressman Said to Have Been Dependent on Andrew Carnegie.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—That the comfortable fortune of the late Galusha A. Grow, for 20 years a Congressman from Pennsylvania and Speaker of the House during a part of the Civil War, had been wheedled away from him by a band of sharpers, was today declared by James T. Dubois, of the State Department, his executor and for years Mr. Grow's nearest friend.

A hitherto hidden chapter in the life of the author of the "homestead law" was revealed by Mr. Dubois, when he declared that since the dissipation of Mr. Grow's estate the Pennsylvanian had been in receipt of an annuity of $2000 from Andrew Carnegie, granted as a reward for Mr. Grow's services to the nation.

While admitting Mr. Grow's money had been stolen from him, Mr. Dubois resents the use of the term blackmail as a reflection upon the Pennsylvanian's character. Such was not the method of the sharpers, he declared. After a lifelong acquaintance with the statesman, his executor declared that there was not an event in Mr. Grow's life which would render him liable to blackmail.

His resources were wheedled away from him by ingrates whom he had assisted in many ways and to whom he had shown a kind-hearted and generous disposition for many years past, said Mr. Dubois.

Says One Was a Woman.

"It was in 1882," he continued, "that Mr. Grow became acquainted with some of the persons who afterwards looted his estate. A young woman was one of them and unscrupulous men were the others directly engaged. The statesman at first regarded the woman as a person worthy of his financial assistance and on the basis of these early philanthropic acts the schemers developed their later plan of action and continued it until his death.

"In November, 1905, I wrote Andrew Carnegie telling him Mr. Grow had lost all his property and was in financial distress. Mr. Carnegie answered by saying he desired, owing to the distinguished services of Mr. Grow to his country, to see Mr. Grow live in comfort for the rest of his life.

"He asked me how much would keep Mr. Grow in comfort. I knew it would cost him $2200 a year to live, and that he had only $200 a year income. Mr. Carnegie then said: 'It will give me great pleasure to place him upon my private pension list of $2000 a year,' which he did."

NEW YORK RUBBISH IS SOLD FOR FUEL

Italians Pay City for Permission to Sort Piles of Garbage.

A great corps of street cleaners is hard at work in New York City gathering up every bit of rubbish and making the streets as spick and span as a ship's deck. These workers, says the Technical World Magazine, are a municipal staff, and they are employed by the city not only for hygienic purposes but chiefly for economic reasons. They save the city many thousands of dollars a year by supplying fuel for a large electric lighting plant.

This is the first time that rubbish has been systematically collected and used as fuel and the big plant where the work is done, located at Tompkins and Delancey streets, is attracting general interest.

Hundreds of carts, each carrying 1000 pounds of all sorts of odds and ends, drive up to the plant daily. There commences a thorough sorting and distributing of the refuse. Picturesque sons of Italy swarm the sorting rooms, where they gather around the long slides down which the rubbish passes to the great furnaces, eagerly snatching out buttons, rags and other odds and ends which they deem valuable. For these prizes they pay the city so much a pound as "rags," and many queer things are stowed away in their linsey-woolsey bags.

Occasionally an old coat or vest or a disreputable purse slips along the trough, and is quickly snatched out by an alert watcher, who has visions of riches tucked away in pockets or in the compartments of the purse. These dreams are sometimes realized, for both money and jewels at rare intervals are swept into the city's huge heaps of rubbish and filthy garbage. All day long a stream of wagons and of sorters passes in and out of the yards of this incinerator, and all day long the workers are rapidly separating the combustible from the noncombustible, feeding the huge furnaces with the former and disposing of the latter in various ways.

Previous to the construction of the present plant and a smaller incinerator at Forty-seventh street this material was disposed of by dumping it into the sea or placing it as filler on low land. It is estimated that the disposal in this manner has cost 30 cents per cubic yard, and that the incinerator, treated simply as a means of destroying the rubbish, will effect a saving of $10,000 per year.

Administrator Sues United Railways.

A suit against the United Railways Co. was filed Wednesday to recover $10,000 for the death of Gerhard Siemers who, it is alleged, was thrown from an Easton avenue car and fatally injured Feb. 14, 1907. The suit is entered in the name of Public Administrator Troll Siemers' heirs include a sister, known as Sister Monica, Mary Siemers and his brother, Theodore. Vital W. Garesche is representing the plaintiff.

BRYAN MIGHT NAME ROOSEVELT FOR DEMOCRATS

Says He Will Nominate Latter if He Considers It His Duty.

GRAVES SUGGESTS IDEA

Southern Editor Hails President as Democrat and Wants His Re-Election.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 11.—Following the speech of John Temple Graves, at the Bryan banquet here last night, in which the editor of the Atlanta Georgian suggested that Mr. Bryan nominate Theodore Roosevelt as Democratic candidate for President in 1908, Mr. Bryan declared that if, after mature consideration, he should consider his duty lay in that direction, he would nominate Mr. Roosevelt if it should prove the last act of his life.

"As at present advised," said Mr. Bryan, "I shall not present the name of Theodore Roosevelt to the Democratic national convention. Bear in mind, I say, 'as at present advised.'"

Mr. Bryan then added that if any Republican were to be selected by the Democrats to head their national ticket, the man should be Senator La Follette of Wisconsin. He presented reasons why, in his opinion, Mr. Roosevelt was not the proper man for the presidency.

Mr. Graves had carefully prepared the speech, advocating this action by Mr. Bryan, and, up to the time of his arrival here, had no thought other than to address the club on this topic.

Those in charge of the dinner, however, thought that an expression of such views would be improper because of Mr. Bryan's presence, and requested Mr. Graves to eliminate all such references from his speech.

Withdrew From Banquet.

Rather than have his address censored, Mr. Graves decided not to speak at all, declining to alter either his views or his remarks to suit the occasion. He attended the dinner for a few moments as a guest and then departed for his hotel. Later he was recalled and induced to deliver his speech.

Among other htings, Mr. Graves said:

Among other things, Mr. Graves said: tions in this republic which few men could have forseen, and which no man 10 years ago would have had the temerity to predict. Out of the camps of the enemy, out of the seats of the scornful, out of the pretorian guard of privilege and monopoly, there has come an unexpected and potential convert to the creeds and theories of Democracy. And whether we find the schoolmaster who has taught him in the eloquent and irresistible evangels of Bryan, in the thunder which has boomed persistently from the eight great guns of the indomitable Hearst, or whether that Providence which shapes the destinies of nations and of man has dropped the scales from his partisan eyes, the fact remains that Theodore Roosevelt has learned his Democratic lesson well.

Executing Democratic Ideas.

"We may as well acknowledge fairly what history will fearlessly affirm, that he has become the foremost, and most practical champion of popular rights which these two generations of the republic have produced.

"The things for which we have fought for forty years, he has been putting into fearless and effective execution. Since William R. Hearst flung at his feet the challenge to reform in the inconquerable array of statistics, which prove the existence and the iniquity of the trusts, the strenuous President of the United States has not failed or faltered in his discreet and fearless way to find a remedy.

"He is putting to execution the things wh ch Democratic platforms have thundered for twenty years. What our propaganda have preached, and what our platitudes of popular liberty have plead, he has framed in part in statutes, until today as an honest party, representative of an honest people, we can do no less than recognize his patriotism, and applaud his transcendent service.

"He has vindicated every principle for which Bryan has plead and Hearst has thundered and has proved himself a publicist and a Democratic Republican, who deserves to rank in achievement with the best and bravest in the annals of our immortal party.

"Can we, the people's party, afford to risk the people's vital interest by changing leaders in the very crisis of the great battle that is on?

Suggests Roosevelt's Nomination.

"Speaking here deliberately for myself, and in my fair judgment of the great majority of the plain and honest Democrats of the empire Southern State, from which I came, I believe that we should put the party then below the people, the principles above the man.

"We should rebuke the spirit of spoils and the hunger of faction. We should affirm our principles, confess our faith, recite the necessity of the reform of corporate capital as the supreme and transcendant issue of the times, pay tribute to the great and typical American who has proved himself the dauntless and conquering captain of the people's cause, and then and there in that great convention of our own, William J. Bryan, the one unmatched and incomparable evangel of our faith, speaking for a pure Democracy, and speaking for the whole plain people of this republic, should put in nomination Theodore Roosevelt for one more undisputed term of power to finish the work he has so gloriously begun."

ANGLO-SPANISH ALLIANCE.

$31,000 Imposed as Fines.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Fines totaling $31,000 were imposed yesterday by Judge Hough in the United States Circuit Court on James Gordon Bennett, proprietor of the New York Herald, the Herald corporation and Manley W. Gilliam, the Herald's advertising counsel. The fines were imposed as a result of pleas of guilty made to indictments charging the defendants with sending through the United States mails indecent matter in the form of personal advertisements.

STOLE FRIEND'S CORK LEG.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

RENO, Nev., April 11.—While peacefully sleeping in a clump of willows on the bank of the Truckee River John Mason, a veteran who fought under Gen. Sherman and lost a limb in the cause, was relieved of his valuable government cork leg by John Heartless, his companion on prospecting trips. When Mason awoke he notified the police, who found Heartless in a nearby saloon freely imbibing many beers bought with coin obtained by pawning the artificial limb for $10.

Every man is expected to dig the dandelions out of his front yard. While this army is at work in front of the homes of Topeka, Gov. Hoch and all State officers, assistants, stenographers, male and female, in the Statehouse, will close the building and wage war on the pests in the Statehouse grounds.

One hundred boys in the Topeka Reform School will march to the Capitol grounds to the music of the school band and aid in digging up the weeds.

Notice to Merchants Who Give Trading Stamps!

The Gold Stamp Company some time ago abolished its merchandise and cash propositions because there was little demand for the same, and the Company found that by discontinuing these things they could sell you the Stamps for one-third less than you were paying. Here are five good reasons why you should push Gold Stamps:

FIRST—That it gives better premiums for a less number of Stamps than any other Stamp concern.

SECOND—That it is selling you Stamps for less money than other concerns.

THIRD—That is gives premiums for 100, 150, 200, 300, etc. stamps, and does not require the collector to save 900 or more as other Stamp Companies do.

FOURTH—That it has given and will continue to furnish you with Double Stamps.

FIFTH—That the Company is always looking to your interest and doing things that will be to your benefit and your customers' benefit, and abolishing things that are not to your benefit or your customers' benefit.

"FIRST IN EVERYTHING."

There is also a question of veracity between the Government and the Standard Oil monopoly.

With the photographing of the voice, every married man will want a photograph of his wife's.

It is hoped that in taking the next census there will not be an effort to make the figures fit the Census Bureau estimates.

LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT.

Gov. Folk, in his message, said that the encroachment of the Federal Government on the right of the states to self-government, should be zealously guarded, and that "this can best be checked by the states exercising the rights of self-government in the enactment of good laws and enforcing these laws so that they will be obeyed and respected."

Very good! The states have neglected their duties too often; but the Governor would not argue that because a State now and then fails to do what it ought to do within its proper sphere, the Federal Government should step in and take control of the State's functions. Yet this is practically his argument in favor of a State Excise Commissioner to control dramshops, which affect local interests.

In the political organization of this country, home rule in the counties and municipalities of the State is as important to the principle of self-government as the separation of the functions of the Federal and State government. The true division is: Federal control of matters affecting the nation, State control of matters affecting the State as a whole, and local control of matters affecting the people of localities. The destruction of the line demarking the functions of any one would go far toward destroying all the lines of demarcation. To take away from the people of the municipalities and counties their right of self-government in questions local to them, would be, in a measure, to create indifference—to deprive them of the best possible school of self-government.

Let us preserve American institutions and American principles in their purity. Let us respect the rights of localities to self-government, as well as the rights of the states.

It will be no new thing if graft keeps pace with the isthmus digging.

UNCLE JOE AND JULIUS CAIUS.

Just when Mr. Shaw is showing us the great Caesar in amiable relaxation from the cares of State, we read that the great Cannon was the cut-up of the Panama expedition on the Bluecher.

According to Mr. Shaw, the greatest Roman of them all could play like a kitten. He could forget Rome, the Lupercal, Brutus and all care whatsoever, and play Button, Button, Who's Got the Button? with the zest of Peter Pan. According to the Associated Press, the great Cannon is equally playful in relaxation from political leadership. On the deck of the Bluecher he could forget Washington, the speakership, all cares like Roosevelt and Taft, and near-cares like Fairbanks. Just what he played at we are left to guess, but he was apparently quite as human as Shaw makes Caesar.

As countrymen of Uncle Joe's, this heightening of his already-remarked resemblance to Julius Caius is immensely pleasing, but we have been too long in Missouri to follow Shaw when he makes great Caesar say, "What hocus-pocus is this?" or to subscribe when the Associated Press has great Cannon say: "Don't speak of me as of Danville, Ill. I am not ill; I never felt finer in my life."

The flag is not to be hauled down again in Cuba until 1909.

DIPLOMACY AND SUFFERING.

One of the most important telegrams from Washington this year is the special dispatch to the Post-Dispatch telling how a "tariff war" with Germany has been postponed by agreement with the German Ambassador, Baron Von Sternberg, who sails for Germany this week, carrying the pledge of the Administration to do the best possible for Germany to prevent its interest from suffering through our tariff legislation.

The importance of this news goes to some extent by contraries. This is exactly the sort of a pledge the Administration has refused to make to tariff-sufferers in the United States.

If we are suffering for more rails and cheaper rails to build more railroads, we are told that the prices are still rising, and that the mills are still behind in filling orders. So of structural iron and steel for our skyscrapers. So of everything else down to the new suit of clothes we would like to get for sping wear with enough wool in it to keep it from looking "shiny" next week and "bagging" when it gets wet week after next.

We are told that if we want "all wool," we must pay "all wool prices," with the woolen mills behind on their orders and no wool in sight to fill them except at prices regulated to cause the highest possible tariff suffering to the pockets of people who are too proud or farsighted to be satisfied with shoddy filling on a cotton warp.

Baron Von Sternberg is a great diplomatist. He can get the measure of relief he insists on for Germany as a "modus vivendi," but our only "modus vivendi" under the tariff is to go on suffering.

Truthful George Washington declined a third term and meant what he said. Let us wait and see what Truthful Theodore Roosevelt means.

DEADLY BOSSISM.

Charles Kratz's demand of the local Republican organization that he be invested with the powers of a boss over all that section of the Republican party south of Chouteau avenue, would, if submitted to St. Louis Democrats, carry by an overwhelming vote.

Mr. Kratz's attempt to boss the Republican city convention in the recent campaign, resulted in the defeat of the Republican ticket by a plurality exceeding the plurality by which it carried the city five months ago.

Mr. Kratz's bossism in the Tenth Ward during the recent election resulted in the reduction of the Republican average plurality from over a thousand to under one hundred.

If Mr. Kratz shall be invested with the bossship for the Republican party of this city or any large section of it, he will boss it out of existence.

The United Railways carried nearly 50,000,000 passengers in the past three months, many of them strapping fellows.

TRUSTS CAN BE BEATEN.

If a man will learn all about the manufacture of a certain article that the people want—something in which the raw material cannot be monopolized—and then go to work manufacturing and selling it on business principles, he can compete with the trusts and make money. That is what a St. Louis manufacturer has proved, and his experience is fully told in the coming Sunday Post-Dispatch Magazine.

The page story of this man's success as a trust fighter, and the apparent ease with which success can be won on the lines he has followed, is so interesting that it almost makes a man who never gave much thought to manufacture wish to "jump right in" and try it. The thing appears simplicity itself.

But the reader will perceive that something more is needed than grit and perseverance. That something is exact knowledge and ability to use it. Says the St. Louis man whose experience is the basis of this Magazine article: "If we did not know how to run our business, did not know all about our business, did not attend to it personally, we would fail."

But given that knowledge and attention, it is well to know that the independent manufacturer has an excellent chance of success. "All an independent has to do today is to sell goods at practically the same prices asked by the trust in a particular line, which, in almost every instance, pay a handsome profit." The trusts have so much watered stock to pay dividends on that they are no longer anxious to cut prices.

This does not mean that monopoly is not a menace to business and to the country. It does mean that the intelligent, courageous man has a good opportunity, in spite of the trusts.

When so accomplished an engineer and expert as Uncle Joe Cannon thinks the Isthmian Canal will be ready for business in eight years, there is nothing more to say about it.

THE COSTLIEST TAXES

When the St. Louis "fiscal year" ending in April shows a steady increase in revenue from nearly all sources, it is a matter of special importance that the revenue from merchants' and manufacturers' licenses continues its annual increase.

This shows that the commercial and manufacturing business of the city is increasing and indicates that the license taxes are not now actually burdensome or restrictive.

The totals from merchants' licenses reach $327,618 for city revenue, $173,677 for the public schools and $53,680 for the State. The totals from manufacturers' licenses are $265,807 for the city, $189,974 for the schools and $58,718 for the State.

This total of over a million dollars is revenue derived from the city's trade and production. As far as the taxes are not taxes on accumulated property, but are really fees collected for license to manufacture goods in St. Louis and to distribute them from St. Louis, they are in violation of a fundamental principle of the economy of taxation, and their extension as part of the system of city taxation would necessarily become a misfortune to the city.

If, under the form of license tax, they are really levied as taxes on trade and production "for revenue only," so that the increase every year shows that trade and production are increasing without restriction by them, it is still necessary to recall each time the annual totals are published that we could levy no other form of taxation likely to prove so costly and so wasteful as the tax levied for any purpose or under any name on the legitimate and necessary business activities on which the city depends.

SLEEP AND OLD AGE.

From the Pall Mall Gazette.

There is no question that the quantity of sleep required steadily diminishes from infancy to old age. This is a rather interesting exception to the general rule that, as in so many matters, old age returns to the needs of infancy. As regards sleep, old age is more remote in its needs from infancy than is any other period of life. If elderly people obtain good sleep during the first few hours, and if they have not lost that delight in reading which we all had in youth, but which so many of us curiously lose, their case is not to be grieved over. The special value of the earliest hours of sleep, by the way, has been proved by psychological experiment. The popular phrase "beauty sleep" is well warranted. It is the early (the deepest) hours of sleep that make for health and beauty.

THE FROGS.

I can feel the season soaking
Into old, familiar keeps,
When the frogs resume their croaking
In the shallows and the deeps,
The April rain invoking
With their melancholy peeps.

The white field daisy's blooming,
And the bittern's at the bogs—
I know it by the booming
Of the deeper-chested frogs,
And lesser frogs presuming
From the colgn of divers logs.

The trees are fairly leaving,
And the playful breezes pull
The apple flowers—thieving
Where the tree is overfull—
I know it by the heaving
Of the thunder-throated bull.

The dogwood burgeons brightly,
And the stilted plover wade,
With stately tread and lightly
In the waters of the glade—
I know it by the nightly,
All-batrachian serenade.

O, droll and bad musicians
Piping nightly in the bogs,
You send the best traditions
Of Apollo to the dogs—
But for all of your omissions,
We delight to hear the frogs.

MEDITATIONS OF MARCUS AURELIUS.

LIFE is a struggle; be ever prepared for any event. Reflect on the sources of people's opinions and feelings and you will experience neither annoyance when they blame nor satisfaction when they praise.

Whatever be your suffering, reflect that pain implies no scandal; nothing that need soil the soul. It cannot last and at the same time prove intolerable. Remember, too, when annoyed by other matters, not even painful, to rouse and prove yourself a man. Take heed then not to retort the sentiments of the wicked.

Nature has framed you so that you may discern your duty and perform it. Happiness lies in narrow compass. You may fail as a naturalist or logician, but nothing need prevent you from being modest, free, obedient to God and well disposed toward man.

THE SNIFF KISS

Written for the Post-Dispatch
By Walter A. Sinclair.

Prof Hopkins, of Yale, Says that the Ancients Knew No Kiss But the Sniff.

A LOVER in ye ancient days on India's coral strand
Once took a little peacherine and held her by the hand.
She snuggled close and rubbed his nose in very friendly way
And in a tender, nasal tone these words he then did say:

"I do not ask a gentle kiss
To make my joy amount to bliss.
Although it would not be amiss.
I really only ask you this:
Just hold your little nose to mine
The while your eyes with love do shine.
For I'll be very happy if
We sit alone and sniff and sniff."

The years roll by, the ages pass, and, mercy, what a change!
If modern lovers acted thus we'd think it very strange.
For now when lovers have a spat and each one turns his back
The sniffs then show contempt where all was kissing once, alack.

And who will say that noise like this
Is sentimental as a kiss?
It's cruel war, all hit and miss,
And not the happy lovers' bliss.
With noses pointing in the air
They make a most unhappy pair.
You bet it makes a lot of diff
When lovers sit and sniff and sniff.

A Spiritual Suggestion for Today

ST. CHRYSOSTOM.

TO us the present life is full of toil, care and sorrow; and if there were no future life to make up for the present, then it would seem that God had made slaves better than their masters.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

(This column is open for discussion of public questions. Letters must give name and address of writer and should not exceed 150 words. Names will not be published, if so desired. Suggestions and criticisms concerning the Post-Dispatch are invited.)

Is Widely Read.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

We were very much surprised upon opening our mail this morning to find about forty or fifty letters asking for work in the mines. Most of them enclose a clipping cut from the Post-Dispatch, issued, I presume on the 5th or 6th, headed "Jobs Hunting Men," and signed "Sure Thing." Evidently your paper is extensively read and we wish to congratulate you upon this fact. We do not know who put this in the paper, but, nevertheless, "Sure Thing" is right. Any man who is willing to work in the mines, especially at shoveling, can earn from $2 to $4 per day and obtain steady work. This district is very short of laboring men for the mines.

Woman for Chief.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

What is the matter with St. Louis—can it be possible that our city must be run by thugs and criminals? Men who have been holding responsible positions for years have been thrown out on the evidence of the lowest class on earth. Who is to blame? Why not try a woman for Chief of Police? I don't think she would go to women like May Harrington for information of any kind.

Teachers and Graduates.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Referring to your article of yesterday wherein the Eleventh Ward Improvement Association charged discrimination against St. Louis teachers by employing outside teachers: This is a fact that our good Mr. Soldan probably has overlooked. The board has on the payroll some sixty outside teachers that the board's officers say have been hired and would be taken care of, and they are paid $2.50 per day whether they fill a position or not. Now there are a couple of dozen girls from the last June class who have had no appointment and several of them have had to take up stenography and other positions, as they had to live and could not await the board's pleasure. Many graduates of the normal classes have had to secure other appointments as the outside teachers have been pushed in ahead of them by the board.

FAIR PLAY.

Ironclad Butter.

To The Editor of the Post-Dispatch

America is naturally proud of her ironclad vessels, and of course they are excellent in their way. But you can't eat them. They are not a good substiture for butter. The latter being 23 cents a pound, imagine, if you can, the indignation of the merchant were you to proffer him 30 cents for the same and to make up the defect by adding a chunk of wood and iron. And yet on these very same lines he treats his customers. They, lamb-like, with ne'er a word, receive their 15 ounces of butter or 'margarine and one ounce of receptacle, wood and iron. In darker (lighter) England it is against the law to weigh butter with even the paper under it. If the authorities will not stop this practice let the women take the matter up, their watchword being "Butter, not boats."

OVER THE TEACUPS.

The Girls Discuss an Art Exhibit While Waiting for An Order of Strawberry Shortcake.

Written for the Post-Dispatch
BY ROSE MARION.

"CENTURIES since we had lunch together," said Nippy with a pinch of pathos in her voice. Certainly dreary with both you girls out of town. Let's celebrate the return of the gad-abouts with strawberry shortcake."

"Out, say we," replied Dreamy, "we've been doing art and we're food-faint."

"Saw some darling etchings," said Burny.

"Whose?" asked Nippy. "I'm mad about etchings since I know how they make 'em with copper plates and dry points. Man who owns a lot told me. Takes almanacs of time and finger muscles like those of a lacemaker."

"Some of Helleu's women, a crowd of Whistler's varieties and a few of Millet's," responded Burny as if she were at "quiz."

"Helleu's women are dandy," remarked Dreamy. "All French grace, and beautiful when they're ugly."

"You're thinking about the woman who has her hair combed up straight in the back—the 'awful coiffure' of the women who won't take time to do anything, that they may give all their time to 'getting something done.'"

"Wasn't the tie of her neck ribbon a joke?" asked Burny.

"A tragedy," contradicted Dreamy, who has serious views, "if I had money enough to be preachy, I'd buy that etching and send it to my friend who thinks she's too busy to bother about her looks. Then I'd send a follow letter containing this: 'When cured, pass it along.'"

"And thus establish a circulating etching," said Burny.

"Helleu has one perfectly beautiful child," said Burny. "It makes one wonder why he wastes time on almost hideous women."

"Whistler's children are the kind you want to hug," said Nippy, changing artists, "that 'Bibi Valentin' is the cunningist little fellow. Poor 'Little Arthur' looks like one of those children who die young. Annie isn't that kind. She's healthy and happy.

"I was raving wildly about Whistler's Thames things," said Dreamy, "when two girls came in and marched right up to 'A Cocktail Glass,' by Whistler. Whistler believed that etchings should be small and this isn't quite life size. Wish we could buy it,' said the one that had the most cherries. 'Just the thing for him,' said the other, 'He's daft about Whistler and he drinks cocktails.' 'Just like St. Louis,' commented Miss G."

"We went over to look at the Millets that are neighbors of the cocktail."

"What's his name?" asked Nippy.

"Don't know," replied Dreamy, "I was curious about him when I began to look at 'The Shepherdess Knitting,' but I'd forgotten about him before I got to 'The Gleaners.' Millet's paintings, and etchings are different, even if they have the same subjects and figures.

"When it was time for Burny and I to leave those girls were looking at that wonderful hand-wrought jewelry that smart Chicago woman makes."

And the shortcake arrived.

WHAT IS THE COLOR OF YOUR VOICE?

From the Chicago Tribune.

WHAT is the color of your voice, madame?

Mrs. Northesk Wilson of London says that various people sing and speak in all the colors of the rainbow and sundry other tints, ranging from palest pink to ultra violet.

If your voice should turn out to be a pale gray it is a sign of Mrs. Northesk Wilson that you have highly intellectual parts; whereas, if it should prove to be a species of gaslight green, it shows that you have religious feeling tinged with fear. Light green voices demonstrate their possessors to be adaptable; brown voices show selfishness, while a light purple bespeaks devotion, mixed with affection. Philanthropic women's voices are pink.

Mrs. Wilson, working along the lines of other experts, has discovered that voices not only have colors, but that these colors betray character.

A singular phenomenon in connection with voice character is the fact that one may reform his voice. If a person learns that he has an immoral voice, say a blackish brown, denoting malice and scarcity of good impulses, he can decide to rectify his disposition. After a while, if he persists in the straight and narrow path, his voice will change as his imposition alters.

After hard striving he may be endowed with a pale, pinkish red voice, which, according to Mrs. Wilson, denotes high, unselfish affection, and then later on may even attain the philanthropic hue of pale pink, denoting love for humankind.

An inebriate with a dark brown voice may take the pledge. If he keeps it he will be rewarded with the deep blue hue of purity. A jealous person with a voice that looks like a patch of burnt sienna, streaked with tongues of fire and struck lightning, may develop a pale gray voice, signifying devotion to a noble ideal.

BETTY VINCENT'S ADVICE to LOVERS

STREET FLIRTATIONS.

NOT infrequently a young man or a young girl writes me of some flirtation with an unknown person on the street, the exchange of smiles and glances, and the inquiry invariably ends with: "We have no one to introduce us. How can we get acquainted?"

These people might just as well write me: "I am bald and there is no possible means of restoring my hair. How can I restore my hair?" For unless they have or can discover some mutual acquaintance to introduce them there is no possible way of their meeting each other in a self-respecting way. The introduction may seem to a romantic young girl a stupid formality, but it is designed wholly for her protection. The handsome stranger who wears such nice clothes and smiles so ingratiatingly may be a confidence man or an exconvict or he may be a perfectly honest, respectable young man. But an introduction by a friend whom you trust is the only thing that can vouch for him and protect you. Remember this and avoid flirtations with men you don't know.

A Millionaire for Her.

Dear Betty:

I AM a young man of strictly moral principles and am engaged to a young lady of 17. She is very sweet to me always and I love her deeply, but there is one fault which, try as I will, I cannot cure. Every time I take her to a dance she insists on getting up in the middle of the floor and dancing the mattichiche, much to my embarrassment. Now, what would you advise?

ANXIETY.

I would advise you to get another girl. She is eccentric enough to win a millionaire.

A Baby Othello.

Dear Betty:

I AM 17 years of age and am in love with a young lady one year my junior. I know that she likes another young man and I am sure that she loves me. Will you advise me how I can have her to give the other young man up without offending her?

W. B. H.

You are too young to become engaged to her and have no right to demand her exclusive society. She is entitled to all the nice boy friends she wants. Don't be a baby Othello.

He Wants to Kiss Her.

Dear Betty:

I AM a young girl 17 years of age and love very devotedly a young man 20 years of age, whom I have known quite a long time, but he seems to care more for other girls when he is out in company, although he acts as if he loves me very much when he comes to see me. He comes to the house almost every time I ask him, and he always wants to kiss me, and it seems I can't help letting him do so, as I love him so much and I do not want to offend him. Would like to know whether it is my place to ask him to the house, whether I ought to allow him to kiss me, and, most of all, how I can find out whether he loves me.

EM.

You should not ask the young man to call on you after he has once received permission to do so. It is a grave mistake to allow him to kiss you unless you are engaged to him or have every reason to think you will be. Seek him less and he will seek you more.

A Point of Honor.

Dear Betty:

I AM deeply in love with a young lady, who I have reason to believe likes me very much. Some time ago she told me she was keeping company, and I think she is now engaged. I have never gone out with her nor called on her, as I thought it would be dishonorable and unfair to the other fellow. Now, I am very anxious to pay her attentions and I would like your advice. Knowing that she is keeping company and is probably engaged, would it be dishonorable for me to invite her to the theater or ask to call, and would it be proper for her to accept an invitation from me? With a view to winning her himself should a young man pay attentions to a young lady who is already engaged?

"UNCERTAIN."

Why not ask her outright if she is engaged? That would be the most direct solution of the problem. If she is not, you have as much right to try to win her as has the other man.

Dies of Mumps at 95.

Holyoke (Mass.) Dispatch in New York Times.

At the age of 95 Mrs. Cynthia P. Houghtaling of this city died today of mumps. Mrs. Houghtaling was the oldest women in the city. It was not believed possible at first that at such an age she could be suffering from a disease which she had escaped in her childhood, but her physician declared that it was plainly a case of mumps.

She was very ill from the first and died in a few days.

HINTS FOR HOUSEKEEPERS

CHILDREN'S SUITS.

From Harper's Bazar.

FORTUNATELY for the mother, fashion is far less whimsical in her shaping of the clothing of juveniles than in the changing forms of their elders' gowns and, even still more fortunately for her novice hand, there is less complexity in the shaping and trimming of it. Her task in the present season consists in selecting for her boy or girl from a few standard frock or suit forms on which all others are built; to study the little variations of them and to individualize them by their trimming according to her child's requirements or her own fancy.

Becoming colors or combinations of color are as important to the happiness and peace of mind of little folks as they are to the serenity of "grown-ups." The child's recreation dress for this reason requires to be sympathetically selected, a thing which is always possible, no matter how slender the providing purse, in this season of multitudes of cotton, stout or thin, at prices from 7 cents a yard up.

Apple Snow

PULL and grate one large sour apple, sprinkling over it a small cupful of powdered sugar as you grate it to keep it from turning dark, break into this the whites of two eggs and beat it constantly for half an hour; take care to have it in a large bowl, as it beats up stiff and light. Heap this in a dish and pour a fine, smooth custard around it and serve. Or make a layer cake and fill with this, then heap the remainder on the top.

Fried Liver.

HAVE ready a dish of boiling water on the stove, drop in a few slices at a time, let them simmer a few minutes, then lift out, one at a time, and dip in a bowl in which you have a well-beaten egg and then into a plate of salted flour. Fry as you would chicken or veal, slowly, and thoroughly, with lid on the pan until well done, and nicely browned on both sides, but not dry and hard.

Walnut Dainty.

WHIP one cup cream and white of two eggs separately until stiff and light and blend together, add one cup shelled walnuts rolled fine, and spread on wafers or cake cut thin.

NEW HAIR AT 100.

From the New York Herald.

"Grandma Clayton is growing a full suit of black hair," was the announcement made today concerning Mrs. Ruth Clayton, the oldest resident of Hancock County, 100 years old, and many of the pioneer's friends called upon her, and were astonished to see the change that had come over her.

Following a short spell of illness a few weeks ago, Mrs. Clayton lost her hair, which was silvery. A few days ago her hair began to grow again.

Mrs. Clayton is planning for a horseback ride to Spring Lake park on her next birthday.

A CRITICAL GUIDE TO WEEK'S LEADING PLAYS.

Olympic—Forbes-Robertson and Gertrude Elliott in "Caesar and Cleopatra."—An exquisitely appreciative presentation of a whimsical Bernard Shaw excursion into poetic-historic drama, touched with high burlesque. Stars well supported by carefully trained company.

Garrick—Thomas Q. Seabrooke in "The Man on the Box."—Clever comedy work by star in a play that's more farce than comedy. Sylvia Lynden fairly competent in leading woman role. Capable and well-cast company.

Century—Wright Lorimer in "The Shepherd King."—Biblical play of not entirely convincing quality. Lorimer as David is moderately satisfying. Company fair. Picturesque scenic production.

Grand—The Rays in "Down the Pike."—Laughable musical comedy with scenes laid at St. Louis World's Fair. Johnny Ray good in leading role. Fun of the knockabout variety. Catchy songs.

MISLEADING.

From the Chicago Record-Herald.

Two advertising men were walking along Division street the other day.

Suddenly one of them stopped in the middle of the sidewalk and stared fixedly across the street. He smiled, his eyes twinkled.

JONES & BARKER,
CHEAP SKATES.

"What's funny about that?" asked the companion, noticing his friend's smile.

"Why, nothing much," answered the other, "only I can't see why they want to advertise that fact; if I had that reputation I'd try to keep it quiet."

THE REAL OKLAHOMA TYPE.

From Appleton's Magazine.

OKLAHOMA of today is possessed of a man with type characteristics. This type of man came from all over the United States. He was necessarily a young man, not yet arrived at the period of life when prudent conservatism steps in. He was a man of vigor, to whom the rough elbowing for a position in life was a positive pleasure. He had to be good-natured and willing to take and give blows with a laugh. He had to be generous and public spirited, for survival depended upon a community of interests. If he could not fairly live up to these standards—particularly in the earlier years—he found himself inexorably weeded out, ostracized, and helpless under the pressure of a condemning populace.

He had to be brave, self-reliant and resourceful, for food came only by toil and ability, and there were no unearned increments to be picked up on the prairie beyond neighborly hospitality in meals and shelter for a short probationary period.

He is, par excellence, the "town builder" of the United States and has waxed confident in his ability to grow them in order, for he has seen hundreds of towns spring up, mushroom like, from the sod and grow and spread from a spore of scattered tents into cities of many thousand souls.

CUBAN RUNNER WHO SURPRISED ST. LOUIS ATHLETES IS ALIVE

Felix Carvajal, Supposed to Have Died in Italy, Turns Up in Havana and Becomes a Professional.

DEFEATS NEW YORK MAN EASILY

FELIX CARVAJAL isn't dead.

The reports of his dying in Italy while on the way to Athens, where he was to have run in the Marathon race at the Olmmpic games, were exaggerated.

Felix didn't die. He just disappeared.

The story of Felix Carvajal is a strange one.

In the first place Felix, absolutely an unknown, turned up in Havana some years ago and wanted to be sent to St. Louis to run in the Marathon race at the World's Fair games.

Felix was a post runner. He carried the mail and messages between the smaller towns on the island of Cuba. During the war he was a dispatch carrier for Gen. Gomez. He was a wiry little fellow, five feet tall and weighing about 120 pounds. But he could run all day and all night without tiring. He was a wonderfully tough little piece of racing machinery.

Felix came into the office of the Mayor of Havana.

A clerk looked down upon him in the Mayor's anteroom and turned him away. All Felix wanted was to have the Mayor give him enough money to take him to St. Louis, where he could win a great race and bring glory to Cuba and Felix Carvajal.

When the clerk cut off all possibility of seeing the Mayor, Felix wasn't discouraged. The dogged obstinacy of the distance runner was in him. He went out and began running around the square in which was situat- the palace and the Mayor's office. All day he ran. At 6 o'clock the Mayor, puffing a cigarette, started for home in front of the palace he found a great crowd, much excited. Was it a riot? No. Inquiry from a bystander brought out the fact that a crazy man had been running around the square tirelessly for many hours. He kept up the same pace all of the time, and the Cubans, who are inclined to bet on any sort of a sporting proposition, were already making books upon the number of hours he would last before dropping in his tracks. Yes, he was undoubtedly crazy. He had said that he would keep on running until he saw the Mayor.

The Mayor Had the Price.

Back went the Mayor to his office and a few minutes later Carvajal, coming around on another circuit, was seized by two policemen and taken into the dignified presence.

"What do you want?" demanded the Mayor.

"I am a great runner. I want money to go to St. Louis and run for Cuba in the next Marathon," explained Felix.

The Mayor dug up the price of a ticket. "Go and win," he said.

But he forgot that Carvajal needed something to eat on the way. The Cuban came to St. Louis. For three days he didn't have a bite of food. He was scrawnier than ever when he came out to the starting mark.

He didn't have running tights or even shoes. He wore long trousers—the same patched affairs in which he had carried Gomez's dispatches years before. His shoes were home-made, huge and clumsy and patched until hardly a piece of the original leather was visible.

Martin Sheridan pulled out his pocketknife and cut Carvajal's trousers off at the knees. Felix carefully hid the pieces so that he could sew them on again after the race. They were the only trousers he had.

And then he ran. A few miles out Felix passed an orchard. The temptation was too much for his starved stomach. He climbed the fence and lost half an hour stuffing himself with green apples. Then he ran on again tirelessly, never despairing of overhauling the leaders. Thirteen had passed him. He cut down all but three. He finished fourth, and when he found that he had lost the race he wept like a child. Felix came from a more emotional climate than ours.

He Kept on Running.

This great performance made him famous. Going back to Havana he went right on running. He took one trip the entire length of the island and back, running day and night while he could keep away—and just because he liked to run. He was crazy as a June bug on the subject on foot racing.

Carvajal looked like one of the best men in the world to compete in the great Marathon race at Athens. He trained for two months. Then with Government expense money to carry him through the trip, with good clothes on his back, running shoes and tights in his hand he sailed. Carvajal landed in Italy. There he disappeared. He never showed up at Athens. The Marathon was run without him. The end of Felix Carvajal became an unexplained mystery. He had disappeared like a ship lost in a storm at sea, leaving no trace.

At last it was generally believed that he had lingered in Italy, had, like a fool, shown his Cuban gold in some Neapolitan dive, and had drifted out on the tide that night with his throat cut. Felix Carvajal's obituary was published in the Cuban papers.

Then one day, a while ago, Carvajal sailed into Havana Harbor on a steamer carrying the red and yellow flag of Spain. He landed at the customs house, passed through freely, as he had no baggage and started off—on the run. He ran on until he found one of his old friends, who took him in and furnished a dinner and a bed.

A short time ago Felix Carvajal ran a race in Havana—a six-hour race against Henry W. Shelton of New York, a professional long-distance man. Felix ran so fast that Shelton quit before they had covered forty miles.

But Carvajal is a professional now. There will be no more Marathons for him. He will run along with the same old dogged persistence, but the book of fame will know him no more. This is the age of the amateur in everything but fighting and baseball.

INJURY LAYS UP HIGH SCHOOL MAN

Ed Kenneth Will Be Kept Out of Ball Games for Several Weeks.

WASHINGTON BEATEN

The injury to his knee that Ed Kenneth received in the ball game against Washington University last week is much more serious that was supposed at the time and will weaken High School's chances for the Interscholastic championship materially. While fielding a bunt his knee, which was hurt in football last fall, gave way on him and he fell to the ground, but after a few moments' rest resumed pitching and it was supposed that he had received merely a slight wrench. But after arriving home the knee became badly swollen, and necessitated it being put in a plaster cast and it will be at least two weeks before he will be out. Kenneth is a brilliant southpaw and was counted upon to annex the bunting for High this year. It is vary hard luck for Walker, who has the rest of his team moving along in splendid fashion.

Smith Academy, the team that has captured the pennant for the last two years, and who will be the team that will have to be beaten by the winner this year, meets St. Louis University this afternoon in their first game of any magnitude, and it will furnish a very good line on the team the Red and White have this season. Of course they are not expected to win, but any kind of a close score will be very complementary to the team's ability.

Yeatman, the dark horse in the league this year, showed that they will make things interesting for the other schools this year by holding C. B. C. to 1-1 for eight innings and then only losing by the score of 5-1. It was their first game of the year and accordingly presages a very creditable showing in the Interscholastic.

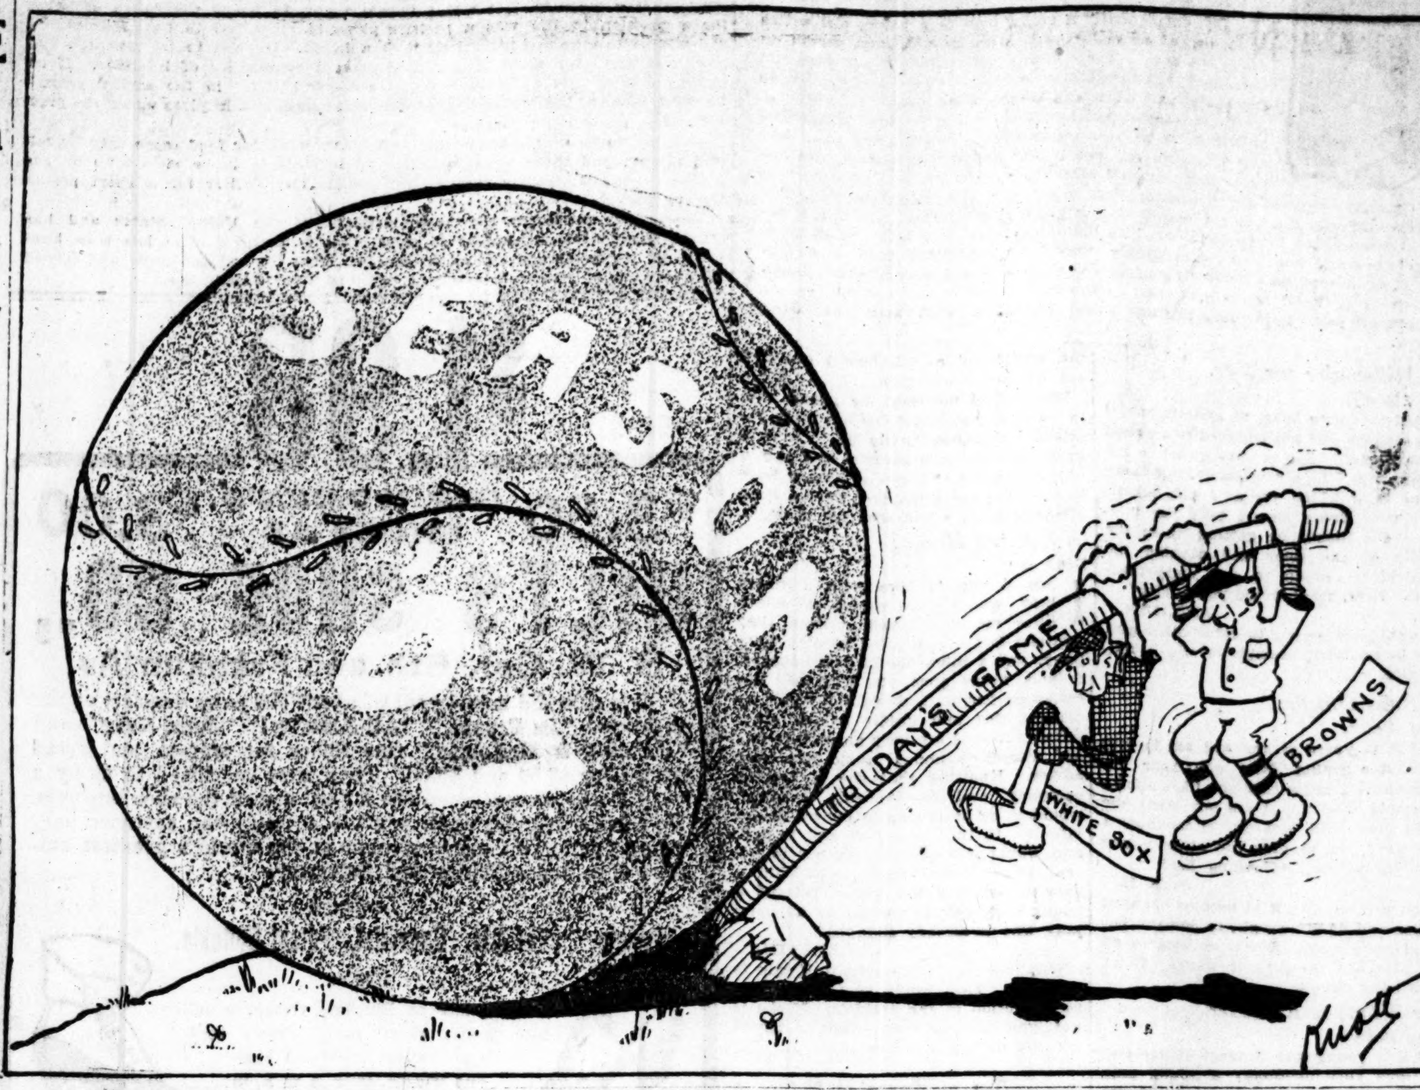

McKinley and Manual have both been having the benefit of practicing against the college teams in town and are perhaps in the best condition of any of the schools. Reports from Alton, where Western Military Academy, the only outside team in the league is located, is that the cadets are sanguine this year of winning their first Interscholastic baseball pennant, and are working hard to attain this result. The Military Academy is more universally feared by all the teams this year than any other school in the league.

This spring, for the first time since its birth, there seems to be no team that is hopelessly out of the race and for that reason the struggle this year will be more close and exciting than it has been in any former year.

Washington University, playing a miserable article of ball, met defeat at the hands of Kansas University yesterday afternoon in the Stadium by the score of 6 to 0. Kansas did not earn a single one of their runs, but they were all contributed to them by the wretched fielding on the part of the local infield. Gill and Hardaway both pitched well for the Myrtle and Maroon and Fischel's catching was the real feature of the game, apart from the machine-like work of the Jayhawkers, who are all old seasoned men and carry themselves with a splendid air of confidence and control.

The same teams will meet today and Blanchard is confident his boys will come back to earth and put up a good exhibition of ball this afternoon.

THE long-waited day has arrived. And almost as soon as the day got here—not when the sun got up, for Old Sol kept under cover this morning—the Chicago White Sox pulled into Union Station.

The White Sox, the champions of the world, are here to open the baseball season with the Browns out at Sportsman's Park and President Comiskey, who came along, is leaving no stone unturned to get a good start. For fear that there are no Chicago rooters in St. Louis, the Windy City team brought along a band that will parade around the ball park this afternoon before the game and about fifty dyed-in-the-wool American League supporters from the Chicago stockyards.

The Chicago team brought along only its regular players, all the new men who have been tried out this spring being left behind, and the team the Browns meet today will be the same one that won the championship last fall.

George Davis, the shortstop, came along with the team, but will not play in St. Louis. He did not join until a few days ago and is far from being in condition. His place will be filled by Tannehill, the third baseman, while Rohe covers that sack.

The Chicago party went at once to the Southern Hotel this morning, and most of the players began the day on the pool and billiard tables. They look to be in good shape to play ball, and all are confident that their team will be again fighting for the world's title next October.

If the White Sox win the World's Championship series at the end of the season Comiskey will guarantee that their share of the receipts will amount to $40,000. The owner of the champions of the world made this announcement at the Southern this morning.

Comiskey's offer will make the bonus of the White Sox about the same as it was last year. The winning club's share of the receipts of the series with the Cubs was about $25,000, and Comiskey added $15,000 to show how much he appreciated the great work of his men.

No matter how much the receipts of the next series amounts to the White Sox may be certain of $40,000 if they win. This offer is enough to bring out the best work of every man on the squad during the entire season. President Comiskey also said he would stand for no dissipation by members of the team and he would see that Manager Jones enforced strict discipline at all times. Last year the team nearly went to pieces on account of indiscretion of some of the men. Comiskey says this must stop and there is no reason why a few wild members of the team should jeopardize the interests of the men who are always doing their best work and fighting hard to win.

"We are feeling pretty good over our prospects," said Center Fielder Jones, manager of the team, at the breakfast table this morning. "Our team, if anything, is better than it was last year. It certainly is stronger now than it was this time last spring and if we have any trouble winning games at all it is going to be right here in St. Louis where they tell me the Browns are looming up as champion possibilities.

"Well, let them all loom up. That makes great baseball and brings in bigger crowds.

"Of course, I think we will get the American League pennant again and in the National League race it looks like a foregone conclusion that the Cubs will finish first. What ever chance New York had was lost when Donlin quit the game."

President Comiskey paid his respects early to McAleer, who also lives at the Southern, and during the morning most of the Browns' players dropped in and Bobby Wallace and Nick Altrock were soon deep in a game of pool.

In the game this afternoon Harry Howell and his spit ball, with Stevens at the other end, will represent the Browns, while Walsh, White or Altrock will do the twirling for the Chicagos. Sullivan will do the backstop work for the visitors.

There will be little display at the park this afternoon when the game starts. McAleer does not approve of fireworks until his team has done something and there will be no speeches such as will mark the Cardinals' opening in Chicago today, and the umpire will throw out the first ball and not a politician.

A local band, composed entirely of Browns rooters, will march out to the park and hand out some music in competition with the band from the Windy City, but Hedges will shut them off after the game is started at 3:30.

There has been a big demand for box seats, and if the sun comes out during the afternoon the grandstand and bleachers will be packed.

With the White Sox came their trainer, Burdell. He and McCormick, the Cubs' trainer, are two of the unique characters in baseball.

The baseball trainer is usually a reformed pugilist, who pours arnica on the troubled athlete and hammers it, in with his fists. Five or six weeks of this treatment makes the athlete forget his original aches and pains. Mr. J. McCormick of the Cubs follows this heroic method. Prof. J. Bardell of the Sox is a wrestler. He gets a half nelson lock on the charley horse and chokes it to death. In either event the athlete undergoing treatment doesn't know whether he is in the roped arena or on the mat. All he knows is that he smells like a free dispensary and is ready to play the game of his life when the gong taps this afternoon.

McCormick is well and favorably known throughout the United States and Canada. Pugilist, actor, sparring partner, litterateur, raconteur, he has starred in all of these arts. At first glance Jack looks like a man who has amassed a competence driving a brewery wagon and was living for nothing but the joys of life. Fat and roly poly and jovial, he hustles about dispensing arnica, sunshine and smiles. Jack wears good clothes, but in a loose and aimless fashion. His only ornaments are a five-gallon can of joint varnish slung to his chatelaine belt and one ear that resembles a fried oyster.

As to the other living picture, that of Prof. J. Burdell, of the Sox. He is smaller than his esteemed contemporary on the other team. The professor seldom allows a smile to ramble across his placid features. To do so would disrupt the likeness to himself in the photo of the professor pasted on each and every bottle of a patent rubbing oil he has invented. Yet the professor yields to quiet humor outside of business hours. He then permits his face to crack open and words of wisdom and airy persiflage fall therefrom.

In the matter of clothes Mr. Bardell has Mr. McCormick beaten eight furlongs flat. The professor inhabits a suit of solid black, the trousers of which are creased to cut both ways. He hands out the Broadway effect going and coming. Tis waistcoat is a soft and fluffy white, like whipped cream, and on the southwest corner he wears a Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity pin. The professor knows a number of Greco-Roman holds. On his necktie there may be seen at all hours a diamond horse of noble pedigree galloping due west across a field of blue polka dots at the rate of 10 knots an hour.

CHICAGO, April 11.—Chicago baseball fans slept on their arms, figuratively speaking, last night and today marched on the ramparts of President Murphy's West Side ball grounds, where this afternoon the local National team opens the season of 1907 with the St. Louis Cardinals.

All night it was a case of "Just Before the Battle, Mother," and when dawn came the army of fans began to march and when they arrived at the ball grounds the "host" numbered one of the most wildly enthusiastic aggregation of devotees of the national game that has ever attended the opening of the season.

In the crowd was Mayor-elect Busse and practically all the politicians and employes in the County Building, to say nothing of the Democratic hosts in the City Hall, who have not yet fallen victims to the Mayor-elect's axe, the new Republican Mayor not yet having taken office.

But if all of the local politicians—and for once, strange to say, politics was forgotten—were there, so were the fans in all other walks of life, from the brokers on the Board of Trade and merchants in State street to the "sick" lads in the big offices from Hegewisch to Evanston, and when the two teams line up for the fray they will be given cheers that will ring in their ears for many years to come.

An unusual feature of the preliminary to the Chicago-St. Louis game was the big number of bets put up on the contest. A number of big wagers were made on the Board of Trade this morning prevailing odds being 7 to 5 on the Cubs. Sol De Leu wagered $500 at the odds named. Other bets ranged from that amount down to four bits.

Manager Chance and President Murphy held a long consultation this morning, and at this the men who will be traded were virtually decided on. No announcement of the possible sales have been made, but it is rumored that Gessler, Osborne, Seabaugh and Sweeney will be let out. This will leave 20 men on the team, which number will be carried during the season. Randall will be held as a sub outfielder.

SLOAN'S INCOME SHRINKS BADLY

Turf Idol, Whose Fame Was International, Is Now Almost Unknown.

J. Todhunter Sloan, once the premier jockey of the racing world, protege of King Edward VII, associate of princes and as much at ease among European nobles and American notables as in a featherweight saddle, who, beginning at New Orleans in 1889, rode from oblivion into an annual income of $100,000 or more—the greatest income ever pocketed by a jockey—for sometime has been broken in purse and spirit and today he is thankful for a $50 weekly stipend.

When, a short time ago, this once peerless jockey admitted on oath that his income was barely $50 a week, and that furthermore he was really many thousand dollars poorer than Job, in the eyes of the law, the reading and racing publics of two continents were surprised—astonished.

For even in an age of sudden rises and ruins, Americans in legion are remembering when Tod Sloan commanded as much notice as a prince or a President. His movements were recorded with scrupulous attention to detail and the mere announcement that he was to ride a certain thoroughbred in a certain event on a certain day insured a grand standing attendance at the fortunate track.

But those are memories which the one-time royal jockey has put behind him—just as he is striving to forget a few of the ways his once corpulent bank account vanished into thin air.

What does he say about it? Has he regrets, resentments, resolutions? How did it happen, his eclipse—entirely through his own or the fault of others, or just through the fickle perversity of fortune? Would he gladly live the past 16 years over again if such a thing were possible? Has he found horseracing and the gaming thereof a social evil or the reverse? What, to repeat, does he say about it all?

Seeking an answer to these queries, a visitor found the protean jockey—ex-theatrical angel, ex-motor manufacturer, ex-man-about-London - Paris-and-New York—in a 6x8 foot office overlooking Broadway and Forty-second street.

Though hardly big enough for the average man to change his mind in, the diminutive office was big enough for J. Tod Sloan, who, on his own smiling admission, is as little as ever, if not so loud.

His scant fifty-nine inches and ninety-nine pounds—the scales say so—were oddly contrasted by a cigar of full voting size and strength. His face, under carefully cropped and carefully parted dark hair, was drawn and corrugated, without having entirely lost the power of smiling.

Other than a plain gold ring, no flare or twinkle of jewelry was revealed between the left-over scarf and the diminutive shoes. There was a tensity to his grip, on shaking hands, that confirmed his claim to an unimpaired ability in piloting the iron-jawed thoroughbred. Otherwise little about the Tod Sloan of today suggests the throneless jockey king.

YALE-HARVARD FOOT BALL GAME

Teams Will Meet in Annual Struggle Just the Same as Ever.

DATE SET FOR NOV. 23

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 11.—Yale and Harvard have arranged their annual football game, and it is now certain that they will meet on the gridiron as usual. It is understood that the match will be played on Saturday, Nov. 23, but President Foster of the Yale Football Association today refused to confirm the date, by saying that the schedule had not yet gone before the faculty. It is stated by prominent professors that no objection is probable to the Harvard game, and it is understood that the faculty threw out several hints to the schedule framers before they began their task, which have been regarded. As soon as one of the minor details is adjusted the schedule will be announced. It is stated that the November games will consist of matches between Yale and Washington-Jefferson College at Yale field on Nov. 2; Yale vs. Brown at Yale field on Nov. 9; Yale vs. Princeton at Yale field on Nov. 16, and Yale vs. Harvard at Cambridge on Nov. 23.

PRINCETON NINE LOOMS UP WELL

Looked Upon as Strong in the Matter of College Baseball This Year.

YALE CLOSE SECOND

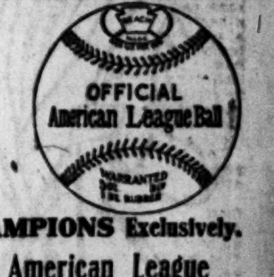

NEW YORK, April 11.—With the return of the teams of the big Eastern colleges from their Southern trips the college baseball season is now in full swing, and it will not be long before it will be possible to get some line on the championship possibilities.

Up to this time Princeton seems to have a trifle the best team of any of the "big six," with Yale a close second. Columbia has an unusually good team this year, but not quite up to the mark of the other two. Penney is playing good ball. Harvard has not yet played enough to afford a basis for judgment as to her team. Cornell has been disappointing, losing games to a number of the weak Southern teams. The Ithacans, however, are rather inclined to be slow in rounding to form, and when the real work of the championship season begins she may have something up her sleeve which will admonish her rivals. Such things have been known to happen.

SOCIETY

NEWS OF THE DAY

"If you're going downtown this morning you might just as well get the Saturday matinee tickets for the crowd, don't you think so, Marie?" questioned one of the sewing circle as the young lady mentioned arose to take her departure.

Marie nodded and pinned on her hat. "Let's see," she said, beginning to count noses. "One, two, Julia, Grace and myself make five. All right, I'll get the tickets. So come, girls, pay up," and she started round the circle, purse in hand.

"Grace produced a gorgeous gold-link money bag and handed over the necessary dollar and a half. Two other girls followed suit. When it come to Julia, the latter said hastily, "Oh, Marie, you just pay for them and then I'll settle with you on Saturday when we meet at the theater."

"No, you won't," said the treasurer, bringing her lips down into a neat, firm line, "you'll settle right now. Sha'n't buy your ticket if you don't."

Julia looked astonished, also nettled. "Why, what in the world is the matter, Marie?" she questioned. "Can't you trust me till Saturday?"

"Yes, I can trust you, individually, for any length of time and am sure that you will pay me then just as you say you will. But I've turned over a new leaf on this buying things for other people and paying for them myself. A burnt child dreads the fire, you know."

The sewing circle looked up eager and interested. They all knew what was coming.

"There isn't a girl here that hasn't been 'done' out of theater ticket money, and by her own friends, too, I am willing to assert on my word of honor."

Everybody nodded solemnly.

"We all know the person who 'hasn't the right change,' who 'has forgotten herpurse,' will send over the money that very evening by her little brother, or any of a thousand and onee other excuses which seem to her good and sufficient reasons why she should not pay. And nine chances out of ten she doesn't pay at all. Shee just keeps on owing, and after reminding you a doenz times that she hasn't forgotten it, the matter ends. She does forget, but you don't and you haven't the necessary amount of aggressiveness to dun her for the money. Now, isn't that so?" questioned Marie, looking round tne circle.

The girls all acquiesced. They had been through similar experiences too often.

"And the pest who borrows money from you downtown shopping, just a dollar or perhaps a five, and she'll 'be so much obliged.' Why one young married woman whom you all know as well as I borrowed a ten from me one day purely because she happened to notice, I think, that I had rather a large amount of money in my purse, and it was actually six months before she even mentioned the subject. I don't think she ever would have paid me if, by the merest accident, her husband hadn't heard of it, and when my brother and I were dining with them one night he made her pay me right then and there.

"And the strange part of all this borrowing money is, that these women who do it are rich enough to buy and sell the girls from whom they solicit and usually get loans. The richer the girl, the more likely is she to owe for matinee tickets and car fare. So trot right along home, Julia, and get your purse. I'll wait here for you," finished the speaker. Julia went without another word.

Thursday's large wedding is that of Miss Eleanor Glaser and Mr. Phillip Schwartz of Omaha, which will take place at 6 o'clock at the Columbian Club, the ceremony to be performed by the Rev. Dr. Harrison.

The bride, who is Mr. and Mrs. Glaser's oldest daughter, is quite young, attractive and a very capable pianist, having studied with great diligence for several years. She will wear a white duchesse satin gown Thursday night, trimmed in handsome rose point lace, the gown being princess. A tulle veil, orange blossoms and shower of valley lilies are the accessories. Miss Corinne Glaser, who is to be the only bridemaid, will wear point applique and white chiffon, with a bouquet of pink sweet pease, while Mrs. Glaser is to be in white chiffon and duchesse lace.

The club will be trimmed throughout with lilies, white sweet pease and many greens, the banquet room, where a dinner is to be served immediately after the ceremony, being in white and green. A reception follows, and then the bride and bridegroom will depart for New York and Old Point. They are to spend a month in the East, going in May to their Omaha home, which is furnished and in readiness. Mr. Barney Schwartz of Omaha will assist his brother as best man.

Nominations for the coming Wednesday Club election were made Wednesday afternoon, after considerable difficulty had been experienced by the Nominating Committee in securing consent of the members who were desirable as officers to permit their names to be used.

The nominees for president are Mrs. Edward Taussig and Mrs. Alfred Lee Shapleigh, women who are equally popular and equally qualified to make the club efficient presidents.

The Wednesday Club has always been fortunate in its choice of presidents. Twenty years ago, when the club started, Mrs. Edward C. Sterling served as the first president and for two terms held the reins in skillful grasp. She was succeeded by Mrs. Philip North Moore, who also served two years, and who gave the club a wider scope and who planned more successful innovations, without a doubt, than any of the early officers. Mrs. Moore's extensive knowledge of parliamentary law, as well as her splendid executive ability, pulled the club immediately in front rank among similar organizations throughout the country and gave it a strong literary reputation from the very start. Mrs. William H. Huse was one year's president of the youthful club days, and Mrs. Frank Ritchey another. Of the recent presidents Mrs. E. C. Cushman was followed by Mrs. George H. Shields, a much beloved officer. Then came Mrs. Washington E. Fischel and Mrs. Robert Atkinson, whose term of office is now expiring.

Apropos the coming election and the probability that the two candidates will run, I am reminded of a little story concerning the election of officers for a certain literary club in the city. It was not the Wednesday Club, by the way.

The two women put up for office of president came out a tie on votes. When this was made known to the club members, sitting in anxious session, a pause followed the announcement and nobody appeared to know exactly what to do.

Finally one woman, who had warmly championed Mrs. One for president, rose to her feet and said quickly:

"Madame Chairman, since the vote is a tie, I move that we make the election unanimous for Mrs. One," and then sat down amid terrific applause from that lady's supporters.

Before the friends of Mrs. Two could rally, the motion was seconded. Then Mrs. One was declared president without further delay.

Mrs. Two and her friends accepted the defeat as gracefully as they could and they do say that none of them to this day ever did know how the thing was done.

IN PAIN, MADE MISTAKE.

James F. Freeland's Death by Acid an Accident.

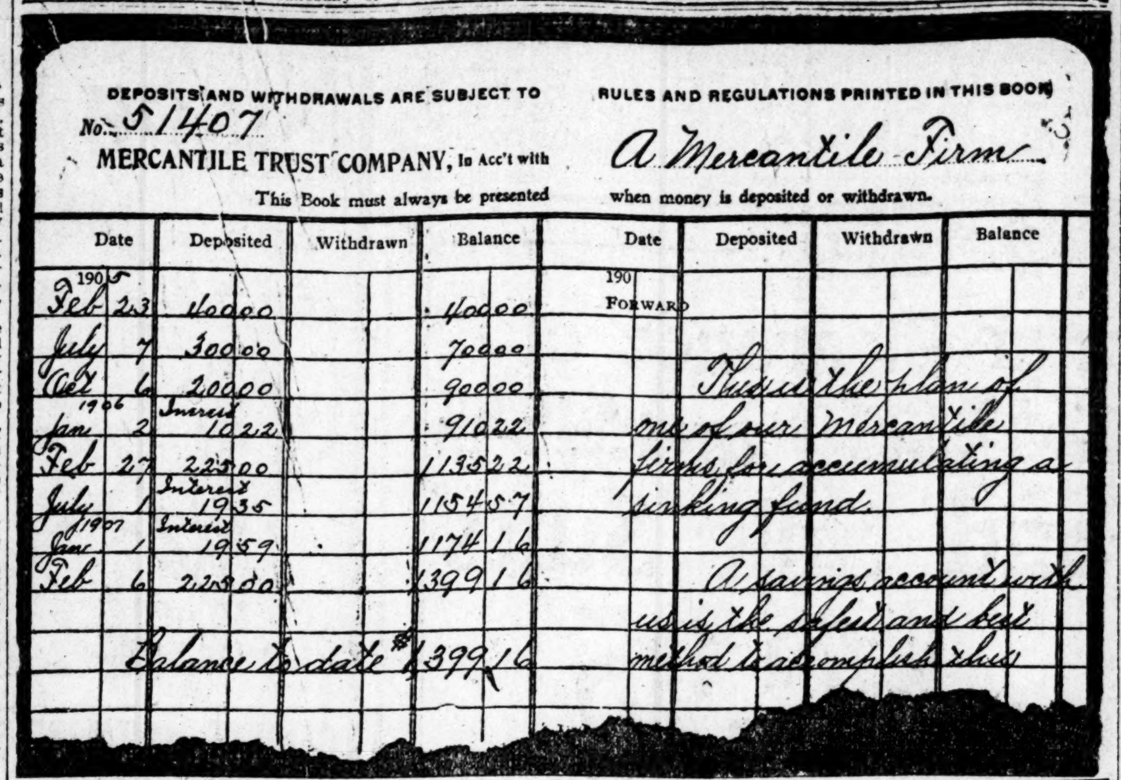

On the testimony of 13-year-old Mamie Freeland of 404 South Fourteenth street, the Coroner's jury investigating the death of her father, James F. Freeland, returned a verdict of "accident."

She told on the stand Wednesday of going to a drug store at 400 South Fourteenth street Monday night to buy carbolic acid for her father to use on an injured hand. The clerk, Albert G. Funsch, refused to sell her the acid but himself took it to her father in a glass.

Freeland, she said, put some of the acid on his hand. It pained him and he thoughtlessly put his thumb into his mouth. Then he reached for a glass of water, and by mistake seized the acid and drank it. The girl was the only member of the family present. Freeland was a baker, 45 years old.

STEAMER GROUNDS IN FOG.

Goes Ashore Off Harwich—No Lives Lost.

LONDON, April 11.—The Great Eastern Railway Co.'s steamer Brussels went ashore in a dense fog off Harwich at 11 o'clock last night, while outward bound for Antwerp. She remained fast all night, with about 50 passengers on board, but was not considered to be in any danger, as she was resting on a soft bottom.

It is expected the vessel will be hauled off at high water today. This is the third of the company's steamers to be in trouble recently, including the Berlin, which was wrecked off The Hook of Holland Feb. 21, with the loss of over a hundred lives.

STEAMER GROUNDS IN FOG.

Goes Ashore Off Harwich—No Lives Lost.

LONDON, April 11.—The Great Eastern Railway Co.'s steamer Brussels went ashore in a dense fog off Harwich at 11 o'clock last night, while outward bound for Antwerp. She remained fast all night, with about 50 passengers on board, but was not considered to be in any danger, as she was resting on a soft bottom.

It is expected the vessel will be hauled off at high water today. This is the third of the company's steamers to be in trouble recently, including the Berlin, which was wrecked off The Hook of Holland Feb. 21, with the loss of over a hundred lives.

HUSBAND LIKE APPLE CRUSHED IN CIDER MILL

Divorce Witness Compares Hammond to Remnant of Shapely Fruit.

KNOWN AS "UNCLE TOM"

Everybody Loved Him in Jefferson City, Former Neighbor Says.

Thomas Lewis Hammond, whose wife, Rosa Lee Hammond, is suing for divorce, was compared by a witness Thursday to a well-shapped apple that had gone through a cider mill. The same witness—Mrs. H. W. Clark of Jefferson City—alluded to him as "Uncle Tom," and eulogized his skill and cleanliness as a maker of butter.

Before beginning her testimony, Mrs. Clark put a question to Judge Withrow with a view of having a question of conscientious scruple decided by him.

"I want your opinion on this matter of truth and honor," she said addressing Judge Withrow. "If you had the confidence of a person who had pledged you not to tell any one, would you consider the lawyers and the judge as no one?"

"Yes, yes, that would be the best way," said Judge Withrow.

At this juncture Attorney Bond for Mrs. Hammond told Mrs. Clark that she might regard herself as absolved from any promise not to relate anything which Mrs. Hammond might have confided to her the witness.

"Well, that releases me before the great Judge, in whose sight we must all appear sooner or later," said Mrs. Clark, fervently.

Mrs. Clark said she knew the Hammonds when they lived on a farm near Jefferson City. She said that Hammond made butter and sold it to her brother-in-law. This butter she described as "extra good"—adding as an amendment that "no better butter was ever made.

Everybody Loved Him.

Often, Mrs. Clark said, she had passed Hammond's farm and watched him plowing.

"That was the Tom Hammond of 20 years ago," the witness declared. "To compare that Tom Hammond with the one of today would be like comparing a well-shaped apple with one that had gone through the cider mill."

In explaining her reference to Hammond as "Uncle Tom," she said the soubriquet had been conferred on him by the young folks and church people of Jefferson City.

"Everyone loved 'Uncle Tom,'" exclaimed the witness.

Rev. J. T. M. Johnston, former pastor of the Delmar Avenue Baptist Church, testified to his attempts to reconcile Mr. and Mrs. Hammond, and to his acquaintance with both when they were members of his congregation in Jefferson City.

His overtures in behalf of a reconciliation of the couple, Dr. Johnston said, were rejected by Mrs. Hammond. Dr. Johnston was unable to tell whether Mr. or Mrs. Hammond paid the pew rent in his church at Jefferson City.

Mrs. W. C. Gibson of Milwaukee, a sister of Hammond, said that when Mrs. Hammond was a guest at her home once, she wore an untidy calico wrapper and soiled white slippers all one Sunday, but when informed that gentlemen were to call in the evening, she went to her apartment and spent a great deal of time on her toilet.

Mrs. Hammond now lives at 5117 Delmar boulevard.

Home Costume Provoked Her.

Hammond did the housework with his hat on and his coat off, and earned the displeasure of Mrs. Hammond, according to her testimony given Wednesday. Hammond went about sans suspenders, and with dirty shirt, she and other witnesses said.

After she had told of their marriage in June, 1895, of her husband's inability to support her and of the various business enterprises by which she had taken care of the family, she was asked by Thomas Bond, her attorney:

"What was your husband doing in 1905?"

"Nothing but housework," she said.

"When did he first do the housework?"

"In Jefferson City in 1901 or 1902. Before that he had done nothing but the chores, like carrying water and going to the grocery for me."

"Why did he begin housekeeping?"

"He was doing outside work. The weather was bad, and he wasn't feeling well, and he wanted to quit it. I let him come home, but I did not ask him to. It was at his solicitation. He did most of the housekeeping during the winter of 1903 and 1904. The washing and ironing was sent out. He refused to do the scrubbing, and I had to do that or hire it done. From the summer of 1904 up to the time we separated, Oct. 20 last, he earned no money and did nothing except the housewor...

Just Wouldn't Be Tidy.

"After I returned from a business trip to New York in 1906 he was absolutely indifferent to me, except when he asked me for money. He wouldn't pay any attention to my request to be neat and tidy, although I paid the laundry bills."

"What was the appearance and deportment of your husband?"

"Anything but that of a gentleman. He would wear a slouch hat in the morning. He was not at all neat and tidy. He would come into the presence of ladies with his hat on and his coat off. Sometimes he would come in and stare at me and my customers and when I would ask him what he wanted he would not answer."

Once, she testified, when he was at work in the kitchen and she was working in an adjoining room, he slapped their little son. She told him not to do it again, she said, and he caught up a stove hook and threatened to strike her.

Ordinarily, she said, he did not want to whip the children until she whipped them. Then he wanted to whip them, too.

She did not believe, she said, that he had any affection for the children, Walter, aged 9, and Mertes, aged 7, nor for her, because he neglected all of them. "I don't think he knew what affection meant," he said. "At least he never showed it to me."

CHILDREN TAKE UP POLISH CHURCHWAR

St. Stanislaus Parochial School Attacked by Youthful Opponents of Priest.

USE BRICKS AND KNIVES

Renewal of Parish Trouble Which Is Involved in Suit in Court.

The schism in St. Stanislaus' Polish Roman Catholic Church, which began in a turbulent massmeeting 18 months ago, in which 314 out of 400 heads of families in the parish adopted a resolution giving the priest in charge, Rev. Father Urban Stanowski, on week in which to resign and preferring a charge of malversation of funds against him with Archbishop Glennon, seemed to have ended in the complete victory of the priest, who was exonerated by the Archbishop, and in the practical expulsion from the congregation of the leading malcontents who were refused permission to rent pews.

The dissension, however, it appears was by no means extinguished, but still smoulders, blazing up occasionally in wordy wars and acts of minor violence. Even the children are infected.

This condition of affairs is directly responsible for the confinement in the House of Detention of Frank Florowski and Joseph Dombroski, aged 15, sons of two of the priest's most bitter opponents, charged with entering the parish school at 1427 North Twentieth street, throwing bricks at the children, cursing the nuns in charge, attempting to cut Sister Casimir, and attacking with a knife Peter Laskowski, one of Father Stanowski's staunchest adherents, who went to the rescue of the nuns.

Tuesday the Florowski and Bromboski boys, who were withdrawn from the school by their parents, who are opposed to Father Stanowski, forced an entrance into the school yard, and after reproaching the pupils for receiving instruction from aliens, emphasized their scorn by throwing bricks at them. The sisters sallied out to the rescue of their charges, and were received with such curses and threats that they retreated. Florowski drew a knife and pursued Sister Casimir, who reached the door in time to save herself by slamming it in his face.

Peter Laskowski, who lives in the school yard, and whose children were among those stoned by the boys, ran to protect the nuns, and says that Florowski attempted to cut him. Laskowski then, he says, struck the boy with his fist, cutting his scalp with a ring which he wore.

Laskowski had the boys arrested, and they are now in the House of Detention awaiting trial in the Juvenile Court. Father Stanowski will appear as the complainant against them when they are arraigned.

A suit is pending in the Circuit Court, brought by certain members of the congregation, against Father Stanowski and his board of directors to compel an accounting of the church funds.

19 AT ROSENTHAL RECITAL.

Advertising Strong for Firm and Not for Pianist.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 11.—It was not because the Colonels do not like music, but rather that there was not an intermission provided in the published program that caused just 19 persons to assemble at Macauley's Theater last night to hear Moritz Rosenthal, the noted pianist, who was scheduled for a full recital by a leading piano manufacturing firm, under whose direction he is giving a series of concerts all over the country. Beside the long time between drinks, the advertising has been a little too strong for the piano and not strong enough for the keyboard wizard. After the manager peeped through the hole in the drop curtain and saw the theater as sparsely filled as a beer garden during a December norwester, he called it off.

Four persons were seen to cash in their seat checks for $2, while those holding "comps" placidly and quietly withdrew. The manager emerged from the peephole long enough to say that Rosenthal's piano had been impaired in transit, even pointing to a place where the veneer was broken from one of the mahogany legs.

VERSES SENT HER HUSBAND.

Well-Known Chicagoan Sued After Discovery.

CHICAGO, April 11.

Last night I dreamed the dream that I was dead
And, as I slept, beneath the watchful eye of God,
I heard the footstep on the sod,
As of one passing overhead.
And lo thou, dear, did touch me on the breast,
Saying "What shall I write against thy name
That men may see?"
And quick the answer came:
"I was beloved of thee."

Such verses as the above, telling the love of another woman for her husband, caused Mrs. Mildred Odell to ask Judge Gibbons of the Circuit Court to grant her a divorce from Arthur R. Odell, one of the best-known coal men in the Central West. Mrs. Odell, who is 24 years old, sighed frequently while testifying against her husband. She spoke sadly of their brief and unhappy married life, but left the courtroom laughing.

The woman exhibited letters to Judge Gibbons containing verses in which the woman writer, who signed herself "Tot," asserted her undying love for Odell. Other letters from women less cultured than "Tot" were shown the Court and in these letters Odell was characterized as "Dear Bunch" and "Kiddo." Mrs. Odell said she was married in April, 1905. The separation occurred in December, 1906.

"My husband would come in from the road on Saturday," she said, "and after greeting me with a 'Hello,' would leave and not return again. I became suspicious and when he returned from a trip I just opened his grip and found all these verses and letters."

SPOONER DEFENDS SENATE.

No Body in World More Loyal, He Declares.

NEW YORK, April 11.—No legislative body in the world is more loyal to the public interest than the Senate of the United States, in the opinion of Senator John C. Spooner of Wisconsin, who at the dinner of the Wisconsin Society last night defended the upper branch of Congress against what he termed unjust criticism.

"It is my conviction," said the Senator, who is retiring because of the small salary attached to the position of Senator, "that there is not in the world a legislative body more loyal to the public interest, more laborious and painstaking in conserving it, or with higher purpose and better practical ability to legislate wisely and in the interest of the whole country than the Senate of the United States."

Mr. Spooner upheld the "just" course of the Senate regarding nominations and treaties. He said the people will never fully appreciate what they owe Speakers Reed, Crisp, Henderson and Cannon of the House of Representatives, an "unwieldy body," and he declared the situation in the House was not ideal, because of its size. Corporate reform he commended, but counseled sanity.

"I yield to no man," said the speaker, "in my loyalty to the spirit of real reform. There is no evil injuries to the jurisdiction, which it is not my earnest wish to see corrected. But I refuse to be stampeded into a departure from vital fundamental principles of government embodied in the examination of our country. This, in my judgment, is one of the dangers which today confronts the people."

WEST TO EAST ON A HORSE.

Officer Will Ride From Portland to New York.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JUNCTION CITY, Kan., April 10.—Second Lieut. McCabe of the Sixth Cavalry at Fort Riley, on special duty, has received notice from Washington that he has been selected to make a ride from Portland, Ore., to New York, on an Arabian stallion. The purpose of this long ride is to test the endurance of this breed of horses with the view of determining their value as cavalry horses. Lieut. McCabe expects to be ordered to Portland within the next two weeks. He will be accompanied by an orderly, and they will travel overland with their full field equipment.

Lieut. McCabe is envied, because of his prospective ride by all the young officers in the garrison, and nearly all of the enlisted men would give all that they possess to be chosen as the orderly to accompany the officer. It is said that the expenses of the trip will be paid by an Eastern breeder of horses, who has been trying for years to find the best horses for cavalry purposes with the view of breeding for that purpose. The distance from Portland to New York is 3181 miles by rail. The route Lieut. McCabe will follow probably will be longer than that.

STAGE OF THE RIVER.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., April 11.—The river is 18.6 feet and standing. Boats down yesterday: Annie Russell and United States snagboat McComb at 11:30; John A. Wood, 2 p. m.; City of Savannah loaded flat at 7 p. m.; Ferd Herold passed for St. Louis at 6 o'clock this morning. Clear and colder.

PADUCAH, Ky., April 11.—The gauge reads 19.6 feet, a fall of .1; cloudy. Arrived—U. S. Goldenrod, from Cairo; I. N. Hook, from Tennessee River; Joe Fowler, from Evansville. Departed—Dick Fowler, for Cairo; Joe Fowler for Evansville; Goldenrod, for Cairo; Russell Lord, for Tennessee River.

POST-DISPATCH'S RECORD OF MARKETS AND FINANCE

STOCK MARKET OPENS HIGHER

English Bank Rate Reduced—List Sells Off After Opening.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 11, 1 p. m.—The market was irregular and entirely professional all morning, the second decline having set in half an hour after the recovery from the decline that followed the opening. At 1 o'clock the decline had carried the general list almost a point under the opening high levels and still there was not a great volume of sales. The fluctuations of the market were accredited entirely to the bear operators and commission houses generally advised correspondents to buy stocks only on drives. The lack of any news of importance left the market open to the bear attack.

NEW YORK, April 11, 10 a. m.—With a generally improved tone the stock market opened higher Thursday. The advances were not of sensational proportions, but general enough to create the appearance of a substantial advance for the day over the finals of Wednesday.

On the industrial side the market opened with 3000 U. S. Steel common selling at 39⅝, full ⅝ of a point over the price at the close Wednesday. In a few quotations Steel common then dropped to within ⅛ of the close of Wednesday, but did not reach that figure. Then it took the upturn again in ⅛ advances.

Within the first half hour, the general list fell off nearly a point from the high openings, but continued active.

Evidently the effect of the announcement of the reduction of the Bank of England minimum discount rate from 5 to 4½ per cent had been discounted. News of the reduction came over with news of a higher and firmer market for Americans.

LIVESTOCK.

Receipts—Cattle, 1800; hogs, 6000; sheep, 1500; horses and mules, 250.

CATTLE—Today's light supply consisted of about 1100 natives and 700 quarantine cattle and included some good steers in both divisions, native selling around $6.00 and Texas at $5.10; bulk of the supply was fair grades, on which the market was active at strong prices.

RETURNED TO INVESTORS.

Money for University City Improvement Surrendered.

With the announcement that the University City Realty and Improvement Co. had dissolved, and that the original plan for the improvement of University City had been abandoned, the money paid in to the concern by investors was returned Thursday. The amount is approximately $150,000.

Reason for the abandonment of the plan for building up University City is contained in a letter sent by E. G. Lewis, president of the company, to each member of the Board of Managers prior to the meeting which was held Wednesday. In his communication Mr. Lewis reviewed differences which had arisen between him and the authorities of the St. Louis Postoffice, and said that owing to the hostile attitude of the Postoffice authorities toward the plans of the company that he thought it advisable to abandon the project.

Those present at the meeting were: Lewis B. Tebbetts, Nathan Frank, E. G. Lewis, Cyrus P. Walbridge, Thos. H. Wagner, Theodore F. Meyer and Walter B. Stevens. The one absent member of the board was former Gov. Lon V. Stephens. The board voted to dissolve the company and directed the return of all money so far received.

Mr. Lewis said he had made other plans for the improvement of University City, and these, he said, he would submit to the voters. The dissolution of the company, he said, would not affect the University City Heights Realty and Development Co. or the Development and Investment Co.

FINANCIAL.

Call money on the New York exchange opened at 2 per cent Thursday, and went as low as 1¾ per cent, 2¼ per cent was high and 2 per cent last figure up to noon.

A wire from New York states that Chicago and St. Louis banking institutions are on the alert for Eastern commercial paper. Bankers seen today denied that such was the case, but New York correspondents wire that several large blocks of mercantile bills have within the past few days, undoubtedly been offered to St. Louis, some of which were probably accepted. The rates for time funds in the local market continue to be very steady, without much fluctuation in either direction. The maximum is 6 per cent and the minimum is 5½. One unprofessional banker ventured the assertion Thursday that rates would be lower within 60 days.

Local bank clearings and balances: Clearings for Thursday, $10,841,049; last week, $10,078,861. Balances for today, $1,033,426; last week, $834,476. Increase: Clearings, $762,188; increase, balances, $198,959.

The belief is growing that there was something to be learned by reading between the lines of the National City Bank circular for April.

The news of the reduction to 4½ per cent of the Bank of England minimum discount rate Thursday was not entirely a surprise. In the financial center of St. Louis the result is viewed as tending toward easier money rates and a renewal of activity in the bond market. The financial interests here, as elsewhere, are credited with the intention to place a strong brace under bond prices and eliminate as far as possible the expensive short time, not issuing practice of railroad and other corporations. This can be accomplished, they believe, with easier money rates made possible by the ability of this country to import gold if it is wanted. The reduction of the English bank rates does not mean, however, that American banks will at once commence gold purchases in the London market.

FIREMEN DRAW COLOR LINE.

Strike When Negro Is Appointed to Their Company.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 11.—Race prejudice in the Fire Department caused a strike of members of Truck Company No. 2 today when they found that John R. Jackson, a colored fireman, had been transferred to their station. The entire company of 13 men left the station and made a protest to Chief Horan. The Chief sent the men back to their posts by promising to transfer the obnoxious fireman. Jackson consented to drive a supply wagon. There is one negro fire company, but its roster is full.

"I am in a predicament about this race question," said Chief Horan. "The law states that I must fill all vacancies with men from the eligible lists. Unless the colored eligibles agree to other arrangements, as Jackson did, I see no way of getting around the race problem."

KNEW NATURE OF AN OATH.

Lie Would Cause Loss of Case, Boy Told Judge.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 10.—Frank M. J. Hay, a 13-year-old boy, who is small for his age, was a witness yesterday in the First District Court, Jersey City, in a suit brought against the Crescent Automobile Co. to recover $300 damages for injuries sustained by his 15-year-old sister, who was injured in a smash-up between an automobile and a trolley car.

"Do you know the nature of an oath?" asked Lawyer Willard C. Fisk.

"I do," replied the boy. "It's a promise to tell the truth."

"And what will happen if you tell a lie?" asked ex-Judge James Manning.

"We'll lose the case," answered Frank.

"He'll do," said Judge Carrick. "Swear him."

WHEAT FUTURES CLOSED LOWER

Lack of Support Weakens Market—Crop Conditions Unchanged.

CASH MARKETS FIRM

Corn Futures Weak, Oats About Steady—Other Markets Were Lower.

Local wheat, after fluctuating in a narrow range, closed ⅛c to ¼c lower for the day—Thursday. Corn closed ⅛@¼c lower and oats ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher.

May wheat opened ⅛@¼c lower at 75⅝@75¾c, declined to 75⅜c, rallied to 75¾c, declined to 75⅜@75½c, and closed at 75½@75⅝c. July wheat opened ⅛c lower at 78⅛c, declined to 77⅞c, advanced to 78⅛@78⅜c, declined to 77⅞@77¾c, and closed at 77⅞c bid.

May corn opened ⅝c lower at 43⅝c, went as high as 44⅛c, and closed at 43⅞c sellers. July corn opened unchanged at 45⅛c, declined to 45⅛@45⅝c, and closed at 45⅝c bid.

May oats opened unchanged at 41⅝c, and closed at 42c sellers. July oats opened ⅛c higher at 37⅝c, advanced to 38⅛@38¼c, and declined at the close to 37⅞c asked.

Liverpool cables closed ⅛d higher on wheat, Paris closed ⅛c to 1c lower on wheat, and unchanged to ⅛c higher on flour, Antwerp wheat closed ⅛c higher. Berlin wheat ⅝c higher, and it was a holiday in Budapest. The local market opened easier on some selling by yesterday's buyers. The very unfavorable conditions in the Southwest and Kansas are still unrelieved, and bug stories were again plentiful, but any new buying support failed to appear, and this caused many of the smaller longs to liquidate. After prices had declined about ⅛c a good demand among the pit traders appeared and a recovery was made. With prices about on a level with Wednesday's close, there was a large commision house trade on both sides, and the market was broad, but the business was about evenly divided, and prices moved slowly. The demand fell off late in the day, and the late trading, which was quite lively, was mostly on the selling side. Prices again broke a fraction, the close being ⅛c to ⅛c lower for the day. The cash demand for wheat was again good today, and prices were a shade firmer. Receipts of wheat at all primary points were 731,500 bu, against 269,273 bu last year, and shipments were 256,858 bu, against 192,000 bu last year. Local receipts were 28,000 bu, against 22,800 bu last year, and shipments were 46,755. Clearances of wheat and flour for the day were 271,...

The lower prices on wheat caused some long liquidation in corn and ... Trading was light and the close was ⅛ to ½c lower for the day. Cables on corn were ¼d higher. The cash demand for corn was good and prices firmer. Primary receipts of corn were 495,075 bu, against 247,225 bu last year, and shipments were 566,008 bu, against 501,000 bu last year. Local receipts were 93,600 bu, against 45,165 bu last year, and shipments were 107,790 bu. Clearances of corn for the day were 42,000 bu.

The oats market was tight, there being practically no offerings and a good demand. Prices were bid up and closed ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher for the day. There was some selling of July later in the session. There was a good cash demand for oats, which supported prices at firm levels. Receipts of oats at all primary points were 531,165 bu, against 451,140 bu last year, and shipments were 486,358 bu, against 427,000 bu last year. Local receipts were 83,200 bu, against 108,000 bu last year, and shipments were 97,000 bu. Oats clearances for the day were 17,000 bu.

The estimated Argentine shipments for tomorrow are: Wheat 4,400,000 bu; corn, 40,000 bu. Cash wheat at Minneapolis is still in strong demand, No. 1 Northern being 2⅛c to 3c over May option today and No. 2 Northern ½c to 1c over. Minneapolis stocks increased 285,000 bu for five days. Following are the Northwestern car lots: Minneapolis, 308, against 177 last year; Duluth, 152, against 33 last year; Winnipeg, 154, against 187 last year. Total, 614, against 297 last year.

ST. LOUIS STOCKS FIRM AND HIGHER

Mercantile Trust Shows Decline on Sales to 349. Bank and Trust List Neglected But Firm. Bonds Inactive and Quotations Practically Higher. Close Steady.

Aside from the sales of a few shares of Mercantile Trust Co. at 350, the forenoon session of the Stock Exchange had few features. The market for St. Louis bank and trust shares continues to be firm; in fact, the advances made in the last week have placed a damper on transactions, which are showing a tendency to fall off.

While the activity in the common shares of Central Coal and Coke has been restricted, a few sales are made each day, the price rising by very small fractions. The sales at the forenoon session were at 63½ and 63¾, the close of the market being 64⅜ bid and 64 asked.

The traction issues dropped entirely out of the market early in the forenoon session, and declined below 72 for bid and ask on the preferred stock Toward the close of the session, the bid and ask settled at 71⅝@72¼ for the preferred, but there were no sales. On a decline of 1 point there were a few shares of Traction common sold at 35.

There was a fair inquiry, ranging higher in bid and ask over the general list, but the sales were limited. Bond list neglected as to transactions, but firm market.

SENATORS FOR A MINE LAW.

Folks Friends Say He Should Make Recommendation.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, April 11.—Unless Gov. Folk recommends fellow-servant legislation with regard to miners to the General Assembly many of his Democratic friends believe that the party organization will be seriously embarrassed in the next campaign.

"I am glad that the Post-Dispatch is calling such vigorous attention to this matter," said Senator Tom Ely, one of the leading Democratic members, today. "No other paper seems to think much of the proposed law, but it is just as important and necessary, in my judgment, as was the railroad fellow-servant law.

"Gov. Folk should let the Legislature hear from him on this subject."

Said Senator Avery of Lincoln County: "I am the author of the present fellow-servant law, which includes only railroad employes. There is no doubt that its provisions should be extended to miners. I believe the Senate is almost unanimous for this legislation and I feel confident the House of Representatives will also approve it."

Senator Humphrey of Shelby County drafted the amendments to the Bradley bill at the recent regular session. He declared that the Democratic party owed it to the people to redeem this plank in its platform.

"I have heard," remarked Senator Humphrey, "that the introduction of a fellow-servant bill would result in bringing the mine operators and railroad lobbyists back to Jefferson City. It appears the railroads have control over many mines. I don't care whether this is true or not. With one or two exceptions the lobby got nothing from the Forty-fourth General Assemby. If the railroads send agents here to interfere with us I believe the Legislatur will find a way to take care of itself. I am for the miners' fellow-servant law and want Gov. Folk to put it in a special message. Nor do I think the question should be delayed."

Senator Fields said: "I am certainly for a miners' fellow-servant law and believe that Gov. Folk will see the advisability of suggesting this legislation to us."

ROOSEVELT AND BRYAN INDORSED

Missouri House First Declares for President for a Third Term.

ASKS HIM NOT TO RUN

Course Regarding Campaign Gifts Denounced—Nebraskan Cheered.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 11.—The Missouri House of Representatives, Republicans and Democrats alike, today indorsed President Roosevelt for a third term as President.

The indorsement came as an amendment offered by Representative Oliver of Pemiscot County, a Democrat, to a resolution originating on the Republican side, indorsing Roosevelt's corporation policies. The indorsement was carried by a vote of 64 to 5.

Following the indorsement of Roosevelt, Representative Hughes of Callaway County offered an amendment calling upon Roosevelt to return to the donors campaign contributions from corporations.

Representative Oliver, a Democrat, moved to lay the amendment on the table. This motion carried by a vote of 69 to 36, the Democrats voting almost unanimously for it and the Republicans against it. By tabling the amendment the original resolution was tabled. However, the vote on the Roosevelt indorsement stands as showing that the indorsement carried.

The House then, by a strict party vote, called upon President Roosevelt to retire from the race and indorsed William J. Bryan for President. The House was in a wild uproar during the consideration of the Bryan indorsement, which was carried amid the cheers of the Democrats.

An attempt by the Republicans of the House to have that body indorse President Roosevelt's actions in his controversies with railroad magnates brought forth fierce denunciations of the President by Democrats and defenses by Republicans.

The resolution of indorsement was introduced by Representative Tubbs of Gasconade County, and was really a veiled attempt to indorse Roosevelt in his controversy with Edward H. Harriman.

Representative Barker of Macon County, in a brilliant address, reviewed the story of the Roosevelt Ananias club, taking up each member in detail, and denounced Roosevelt bitterly. He also drew a picture of Roosevelt's ride up San Juan Hill, "with the reins in his teeth and a revolver in each hand, killing Spaniards by the score."

Representative Tubbs defended Roosevelt and contended the resolution did not seek to indorse Roosevelt, but merely his corporate policy. Representative Oliver of Pemiscot County, a Democrat, offered a resolution providing that the Republican members of the House indorse Roosevelt for a third term as President.

Representative Barker declared all the evidence adduced on Roosevelt's connections with the corporations showed conclusively that he had entered into an alliance with Harriman, Rockefeller and J. Pierpont Morgan, that Harriman dictated a portion of the President's message and that Harriman was instructed by Roosevelt to raise a $200,000 campaign fund from corporations to assist in electing the Republican ticket. Representative Willard of St. Louis, a Republican, defended Roosevelt and denied that corporation contributions were solicited by the Republicans, or that any promises were made to the corporations.

Not Solicited, Says Willard.

"Does the gentleman say," asked Representative Barker, "that the corporations did not contribute to the Republican campaign fund?"

"Of course they did," replied Willard. "Of course, they did. Nobody denies that, but such contributions were not solicited."

Representative Brandom of Daviess County asked: "Does the gentleman from Gasconade consider this a Republican convention or a meeting of the Legislature?"

Representative Tubbs did not reply.

During the regular session the House indorsed President Roosevelt's policy regarding the Brownsville affair.

Representative Simmons of Shelby County, one of the Democratic leaders, said he thought the resolution was a mistake.

"The Democratic members of the Legislature having to go on record for Theodore Roosevelt, a Republican, I believe that bad politics. We are for William J. Bryan for President."

While the debate was in progress Representative Simmons of Shelby County sent the following to the Speaker's desk:

"To the Forty-fourth General Assembly: I beg to report that jury in Thaw case is still out.
"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

FOUND NO JAIL BREAKERS.

One Plan Didn't Have Chance to Work.

A riot call sounded from the Jail Wednesday evening developed pandemonium at police headquarters, detectives and policemen rushing in all directions in an effort to capture imaginary jail breakers.

"Maybe Bergmann has made his escape," shouted an alarmist.

The cry was taken up by a half dozen others, and in the excitement the police forgot they had never caught the man who is so badly wanted in connection with the murder of his aunt, Mrs. Kate Quernheim, and surrounded the Jail in the hope of preventing his escape.

Other officers ran to the railroad yards south of the Four Courts Building, thinking to head off the escaping prisoners should they flee in that direction.

When the entire Four Courts Building had been surrounded by detectives and bluecoats, each with his revolver drawn and ready to shoot, Jailer Dawson appeared on the scene and explained that the alarm had been sounded by accident and that the interior of the bastile was serenely quiet. The officers then returned to their posts of duty.

"Do you know what I was going to do in case anybody had escaped?" said one officer putting his revolver back in its holster.

"What would you have done?" asked a brother officer.

"I had the whole thing mapped out. The moment the bell rang I figured out just exactly what I would do. I'll bet nobody would have gotten further away than across the street."

"What would you have done?"

"I had the whole business figured out fine. There was nothing to it. My plans were laid. I would have nabbed the whole bunch."

"What would you have done?"

"Did you notice how cool I was? That was because I was prepared for it. I've made a study of jail deliveries and I knew just what to do in case of"—

"Well, what would you have done?"

"The only thing to do in a case like that is to have it all figured out ahead of time. Then you can"—

"Oh, shut up."

CARRIE NATION REFUSES TO WED

Declines Proposal of Civil War Veteran With $12 a Month Pension.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Mrs. Carrie A. Nation has had an offer of marriage. It came from a Civil War Veteran living in Virginia. Mrs. Nation has scorned this invitation to take a second trial in matrimony, and in the current issue of her paper, The Hatchet, she tells why she has refused. She says:

"Lonely and despondent at times, Thomas Flanagan of Virginia wants to marry. And he sings his song of 'Can't you see I'm lonely' to——

"Mrs. Carry A. Nation.

She received the letter of proposal from this ardent admirer on Friday and he wants an early answer so he can arrange his affairs.

But he will receive the marble heart. He will get the frigid mitt. Mrs. Nation says she is wedded to her work and that she can't wed a man.

In his letter Flannigan says he is a Government pensioner, at $12 a month, has $275 in the bank, together with a house and some land. His wife died some time ago, and ever since he has been lonely and at times despondent. He winds up his letter by declaring it to be from an affectionate admirer, and says always will he hope.

Mrs. Nation will reply to her admirer and gently decline his generous offer, telling at the same time her reasons for not wishing to marry. She wants to be so she can devote her whole time to what she believes to be her life work."

STARVED TO LEARN MUSIC.

Man Died Trying to Save Money for Tuition.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Slowly starving himself so that he might have moneyto gratify his ambition for a musical training, John G. McFadden died in the New York Hospital yesterday.

McFadden, who was 32 years old, came to New York last November from Oberlin, O., where he had worked his way through college, devoting himself especially to music. He had a voice of great promise. He entered a class in the Institute of Musical Art and attracted the attention of Prof. W. Klamroth, but suddenly developed a catarrhal affection which threatened to wreck his prospects of becoming a singer. Through the friendship of Prof. Klamroth he went to Dr. Percy E. D. Malcolm, as he refused to become a charity patient.

Every month McFadden went to Dr. Malcolm's for treatment. He had grown thinner and thinner, his hair had turned to a grizzly gray and Dr. Malcolm had warned him more than once that he was not nuturing his body properly. Last Monday Dr. Malcolm found him on the verge of collapse in a chair in his office and sent him to the New York Hospital, where Dr. Murray operated on him promptly for appendicitis. The poorly nutured body could not stand the strain and early yesterday he succumbed. He had been eating, it is said, in the cheapest restaurants, with great infrequency, and depending on the scanty meals that he had in his cold hall bedroom.

634 PRISONERS IN TOMBS.

Large Number Due to Length of Thaw Trial.

NEW YORK April 11.—Owing to the length of the Thaw trial and the consequent holding up of other criminal prosecutions, the Tombs is today holding the greatest number of prisoners in its history. The warden makes no secret of the fact that it is crowded far beyond its capacity. There are 634 prisoners in the Tombs, about twice the number usually there at this time of the year. Twenty-nine of the prisoners are charged with homicide. Attention has been called to the conditions in the prison by a case of scarlet fever which developed there.

The highest previous record of prisoners in the Tombs was 610, in 1894, when Col. John R. Fellows was district at-

A CONSUMPTIVE'S BATTLE FOR LIFE

When Despair Seemed All That Was Left for Him He Strives Even When the Doctors Gave Him Up, and Recovers Through Faithful Use of Father John's Medicine.

This experience of a man who was given up to die of consumption, of his struggle for health and life and of his complete triumph over the disease, is told by Roswell H. Lewis, of 61 Second st., Gloverville, N. Y., in order that all who are tending toward consumption may have the advantage of the means he took to fight the disease.

Mr. Lewis in January, 1905, began to have hemorrhages, lost 21 pounds, and in April was so weak he could hardly stand. A consultation of physicians was held and the verdict was that it was consumption, that one lung was nearly gone.

Then followed trips to the Adirondack and Catskill mountains, but after his return home his case was so bad that his pastor and other friends in his church called to see him for the last time, as they supposed.

It was at this stage that he began to take Father John's Medicine. Three bottles of the medicine increased his weight 5½ pounds, and by continuing faithfully with the medicine he has more than regained his former weight.

"If I were able I would give every consumptive Father John's Medicine," says Mr. Lewis, "for I know what it can do when given a fair trial."

Mr. Lewis says his recovery was such a surprise to his friends that it was made a subject for praise and thanksgiving at a prayer meeting in the Methodist church which he attended in Gloversville.

"I want the public to know what Father John's Medicine has done for me," adds Mr. Lewis, at the close of his review of his remarkable case.

Father John's Medicine does not contain alcohol or injurious drugs. It is all pure nourishment.

If your druggist does not have it send $1 for a large bottle to Father John's Medicine, Lowell, Mass.

DAINTY NEEDLEWORK AT SCHOOL BENEFIT

Prominent St. Louis Women Will Sell Garments Made by St. Philomena's Pupils.

GOOD MUSIC AT NIGHT

First Appeal by Nuns Famous as Makers of Trousseau.

Many of the most distinguished women in the city will be in charge of the various departments of the exhibition and sale to be held at the Odeon Friday for the benefit of St. Philomena's Industrial School. This school is famed for its needlework, and for more than half a century it has supplied almost every prominent bride of St. Louis with at least part of her trousseau. For the first time in its 73 years of existence, the school is authorizing a benefit, and the women who are in charge of the exhibition and sale expect their friends to visit the place and patronize them. Below is a list of the women who have charge of the various departments of this needlework exhibit and sale:

Mrs. Charles F. Batse and Mrs. Julius S. Walsh, fancy work department.

Mmes. James M. Franciscus and Daniel G. Taylor, infants' clothes, both long and short dresses.

Mmes. William Walker and J. C. Jannopoulo, ladies' French underwear and other styles.

Mmes. Dan C. Nugent and F. A. Drew, dressmaking, shirtwaists and children's costumes.

Mrs. David Randolph Calhoun, negligee gowns, kimonos, white dressing sacques and hand-embroidered neckwear.

Mrs. P. F. Grace and daughter Dorothy, bric-a-brac table.

Mmes. George D. Barnett and Gwilym Miles and Miss N. Thomas, refreshment table.

Mrs. Miles is a sister of Mrs. Barnett; she is now a resident of New York, being the wife of the famous baritone singer, Gwilym Miles. She hopes to meet many of her old St. Louis friends at the exhibition.

The school has nearly one hundred children in its charge, and not more than about half a dozen have their tuition paid for, the balance are taken in and cared for by the nuns free of cost. The girls are taught dressmaking, needlework, stenography and typewriting, cooking, housework and such other lines as they seem best suited for, so that when they are turned out as young women they will be able to make their way in the world.

Good Voices at Concert.

The sale and exhibition of needlework is to be held during the day, beginning at 9 a. m. At 8 p. m. a benefit performance takes place on the stage of the Odeon at which will be seen several of the cleverest members of the Hot Time Minstrels and the very best vocal and instrumental talent in the city. Those who will take part are Messrs. Stephen A. Martin, Dewey Hickey, W. A. Lawrence, John A. Dauer and Wallace Niedringhaus of the Hot Time Minstrels, Mrs. Charles Daly, soprano; John and James Rohan, Miss Theresa Finn, pianist, and Miss Auelia Ghio, harpist. Lucien Becker will be accompanist. Noel Poepping, musical director, and Miro Delamotta, the famous Savage grand opera tenor, stage director.

An attractive feature of the program will be the first American production of Mme. Calve's celebrated Grecian chorus, with which she created such a furore in Paris. This chorus will be rendered by fifty ladies especially selected by Mmes. Halsey C. Ives, William Hardaway and William McCandless. Mrs. Paul J. Guerard of the Morning Choral Society will be the soloist. The electrical effects and vari-colored lights will make the stage picture a most beautiful one.

Cousins' Specials.

Harbor and Wharf Commissioner White says he has returned $15,000 of the year's appropriation to the City Treasurer. Street Commissioner Valliant says his department has $60,000 left over, and Francis Scharwitz, Assessor and Collector of Water Rates, says he has returned $1000. WOMAN'S DEATH BEFORE CORONER Begins Inquiry Into Operations Which Resulted Fatally to Mrs. Siebel.

The Coroner began an inquest Thursday into the death of Mrs. Susie Siebel, 25 years old, of 3307 St. Vincent avenue, which occurred at 5:50 a. m. Tuesday, from the effects of an operation.

Dr. Paul R. Fletcher of 3910 Russell avenue called the attention of the Coroner and the police to the case. Dr. Fletcher said he was called to attend Mrs. Siebel at 11:30 p. m. April 7. He found that she was suffering from the effects of an operation and ordered her removal to the Christian Hospital, 2821 Lawton avenue.

Dr. Fletcher says he called Dr. Burton Bohannan of 412 South Jefferson avenue and Dr. W. John Harris of 3514 Lucas avenue into consultation and performed a second operation in an effort to save Mrs. Siebel's life. This operation was not successful.

Mrs. Mamie Kogel of 2221 Adams street and Mrs. Josie Heckel of 2775 Chouteau avenue told the police that during the month of February they accompanied Mrs. Siebel to the home of Mrs. Mary Brinkmann, a midwife of 4748 South Broadway, but they did not know whether she was treated there. Mrs. Brinkmann, to the police, declared that she did not know Mrs. Siebel and never attended her.

The Coroner is making an effort to find out who performed the operation.

Wanted, children to come to the Lyceum, west side of Sixth street, between Market and Walnut, on Saturday, April 13. Each child who is accompanied by a cat or a dog will be presented with five tickets, good any day except Saturday or Sunday.

West End business men are organizing a new trust company, at King's highway and Delmar boulevard, to be capitalized at $100,000, of which $30,000, it is said, has been already subscribed. The company is being formed by Simon Seelig, formerly president of the First National Bank of Helena, Ark. Among those associated with him are E. C. Dyer, manager of the Buckingham Hotel, and Karl Zeller of the Zeller Bros. Catering Co. The institution will be farther west than any other of a similar character in the city.

LA FOLLETTE FOR ROOSEVEL

We Must Have Him Again, Senator Declares.

HELENA, Mont., April 10.—Senator La Follette of Wisconsin tonight declared in favor of the renomination of Roosevelt for President. He declared the railroads were taking the wrong course if they wanted to defeat the President's policies by the nomination of some one holding different views.

"They will force President Roosevelt to be a candidate if I am correctly informed as to the actions of Harriman and his associates," said the Senator. "Abusing the President will not help the railroads with the people, as antagonizing him and questioning his motives will result in Theodore Roosevelt renouncing his declaration not to run again and make the race by way of vindication. The needed reforms he has inaugurated must be carried out and he is the one man to do it. We must have Roosevelt again."

Craving for Drink Destroyed

The best aid to temperance is something that will strengthen the drunkard's wrecked nervous system and cure his unnatural craving for drink. We believe that any man who really desires to be cured of the liquor habit can cure himself by using Orrine. This remarkable discovery has made so many cures among our customers that we are glad to sell it under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure.

It is in two forms: No. 1 that can be given secretly, and No. 2 for those who wish to be cured. It is not only the most reliable treatment known, but it is also the most economical, as it costs only $1 a box and there is no detention from the usual duties, while if cure is not affected, there is no expense whatever. TO THOSE WHO SUFFER WITH PILES

Don't go on suffering from month to month and year to year, constantly endangering your general health to a point where a cure may be impossible, when you, like hundreds of others, can come and be cured.

You take no chances when you put your case in my hands. I have not made a single failure in over five hundred consecutive cases. This record I am proud of. My patients are astonished at it, because so many extremely bad cases come to me after they had tried every known remedy and many other physicians, without obtaining a cure, and many times without getting even temporary relief. My treatment is mild and reliable. I apply it and treat every patient personally, which largely accounts for my universal success in the cure of piles, fistula and fissure, and all diseases of the rectum.

STRONG EVIDENCE OF SUCCESS

The fact that in so many instances I treat two, three and as many as four members in a single family is itself a strong recommendation. Common sense tells you that this would not be so unless I had given entire satisfaction in every case.

When afflicted, the first thing you want to know is, can you be cured? The next is, what will it cost? Is the treatment painful? How long will it take to effect a cure? Will the cure be permanent? When do you pay? etc. For answers to those questions, I refer you to my former patients. Call and see them or write to them; they will tell you; then come to me and I will tell you. Can you ask anything fairer, with reference to payment, than to pay me after you are cured? You can deposit the fee we agree upon in the bank, payable to me only after you are cured and you are the judge.

LADIES

I have under treatment all the time almost as many ladies as gentlemen. Those of you who are afflicted should not go on suffering, but come and be cured. Send for my 52-page free book for ladies. It will be of great value to you.

Men should send for my new 164-page free book. The information it contains will be worth much to you.

Read the following letters; they are only a fair sample of hundreds I have on file and publish in my book. I also have just as good letters from everyone whose names I publish in this advertisement.

Remember, I guarantee a cure in every case I accept, and do not require one cent of my pay until you are cured.

M. NEY SMITH, M. D.,
St. Louis, Mo. 814 Pine St.

St. Louis, Mo., March 28, 1907.
Dr. M. Ney Smith, St. Louis, Mo.:

Dear Dr. Smith—I am greatly pleased to be able to testify to your skill in treating rectal trouble. I had been afflicted with prolapsus of the rectum for over nine years. This was brought on me by chronic diarrhea, with which I had suffered for three years previous. I suffered with this prolapsus from year to year, until I finally became so nearly incapacitated from work that I was compelled to seek medical aid. I tried numerous doctors without any benefit. When I went to you I was certainly in a deplorable condition. Every exertion I made I was made worse, and work caused the parts to completely prolapse. When I applied to you I was very skeptical and did not believe that there was any possible chance of my being cured, but your positive assurance and willingness to take my case on an absolute guarantee convinced me that you certainly were able to cure me, and I placed myself under your care, and am pleased to say that I did not suffer a particle while under your treatment. In less than one month you had completely cured me of this trouble. I have never had any prolapsus since, and this cure was accomplished without the use of a knife. I am now working and enjoying splendid health. I would be glad to give anybody any information regarding my trouble who is in the least skeptical.

I am thoroughly convinced that you understand your business, and the result of your treatment in my case has been all that anyone could ask. Understand, this case was not piles, but complete prolapsus of the rectum. Since you have cured me, you also cured my brother of fistula, with which he had suffered for years. I am certainly grateful to you for what you have done for me. Your kindness and attention to me while under treatment was certainly very gratifying to me.

Again thanking you for all you have done for me, I am

Yours very truly,
WM. SCHMIDT.

Dr. M. Ney Smith, St. Louis, Mo.:

Dear Doctor Smith—I am pleased to say that you have entirely cured me of fistula, with which I was afflicted for over three years. I had tried a number of physicians, but none had succeeded in curing me. I am pleased to say that your treatment was entirely satisfactory. My general health has greatly improved since you cured me and I am weighing more now than I have for years. I am sure I would not be back in the old condition for many times the fee you charged me.

When you cured my brother of such a severe rectal trouble, I had no doubt of your ability to cure me, and it was through your success in his case that induced me to go to you. My advice to any and every one afflicted in this way is to go to you and be cured at once. I am sure if they knew how much better they would be and how much stronger they would feel they would not hesitate to place themselves under your treatment at once.

Hoping this may be the means of influencing others to go to you, I am

Your friend,
